RICH BANKER DROPS INTO SEA

AL TELLS WORLD HE'S LOYAL SON OF TAMMANY

Cheers Fill Wigwam as He Says Why.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, July 4.—Behold, on this historic day, Al among his own, among his braves and his bravos, among those whom he this instant is addressing as:

"Worthy grand sachem, sachems, and members of the Tammany society, friends, and citizens, and neighbors—"

Al Smith is standing among those who bred him, among those who—if you let them tell it—made him what he is.

Old four story, red brick Tammany hall in wide 14th street is crowded to the doors.

The facade of the historic structure—some of which is that is worst and of which that is good and human and worthy in American politics—is being with flags and bunting.

Faithful Packed Six Deep.

Far slant the closest Indian hole down from his red brick niche on sidewalks lined six deep with the faithful. They are wending their way to a ceremonial not less significant in their lives than the high mass of Easter Sunday. They are going to the one hundred and thirty-ninth annual meeting of the Declaration of Independence by the Society of Tammany at Columbus Circle, "as prescribed by the constitution and by-laws of the society."

Every Fourth of July since George Washington was inaugurated, in peace time and in war time, in its years of success when the horn of plenty sat in its lap, in its years of Tweedism and of Crokerism, when the nation pointed the finger of scorn at it, Tammany has been meeting to read the Declaration of Independence, to cheer it, to be moved to righteous wrath by it, and to solemnly renew its oath as long as Tammany has a roof over its head shall this reading be omitted.

And Who Shall Cavi? "The fashion to think lightly of Tammany. I wonder how many of the ancestors of our superior ones, as we account ourselves—were bending painstakingly to the reading of the Declaration of Independence on the Fourth of July, 1789."

"However," as Al Smith likes to say, "he strides into a new paragraph."

However, the hall suddenly shakes to a whiff of cheering.

The thermometer stands at ninety degrees in the shade. Nobody cares. For Al—"God love him!" the old women whisper—Al is on the scene.

You hear the marching step of twenty close-buttoned policemen coming from the center aisle and the heavy tread of stout district committeemen. Al is in their midst.

They force him through masses of men, women, and children who show him with cheers and with blisses. He is booming. He knows everybody—"Tim," "Bob," "Morris," "Lacy," "Larry," "Abe," "Harry," "Ed," "Charlie," "Ed."

Greeted the Sachems.

He mounts the platform. He goes along the line of sachems sitting there and shakes their hands. To the grand sachem, old Mr. Voorhis, who is presiding and who wears a plug hat and a broad collar of purple velvet embroidered with gold, he bows as if he would bow to an archbishop.

Old Mr. Voorhis will be ninety-nine years old come the twenty-seventh day of this month. He was born in the first year of the first administration of Andrew Jackson. He is New York's commissioner of elections and he is at his office at 9 o'clock every morning, keying and autocratic.

He was presiding on this platform four years ago today when the Madison Square melee at which Al was not nominated was on. I never expected to see him again. But here he is, old fashioned winged collar, Roman nose, gentle voice, courtly ways, and all that.

And he does.

And he does.

And he does.

And he does.

CITY SHORN OF "L" REGULATION, ATTORNEYS SAY

Ruling Held Door to Franchise Forever.

Serious and far-reaching consequences were foreseen by Chicago legal experts yesterday in the decision of the state Supreme court against the city in the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad case. The first copies of the decree arrived here from Springfield yesterday.

The decision, given on June 23, held that the Superior court of Cook county erred in issuing an injunction asked by the city in 1921 restraining the operation of North Shore line cars south of Irving Park boulevard. The Supreme court reversed the injunction order. It upheld as valid and binding the North Shore company's agreement with the elevated lines, authorized by the Illinois commerce commission, allowing the former to operate merchandise as well as passenger cars to and around the loop and south to 63rd street.

City to Ask Rehearing.

Assistant Corporation Counsel John G. Drennan and Bernard Barasa, of counsel for the city, have served notice that they will petition for a rehearing before July 18, the legal deadline.

As a result of the decision, according to former Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch, who instituted the suit under the Dever administration, "the city now is absolutely shorn of all regulatory powers over the 'L' lines and the Illinois commerce commission is supreme." This view was concurred in by several other authorities, including former Assistant Corporation Counsel C. M. Doty, who handled the litigation for six years under both the Dever and last Thompson régimes.

"Under this decree it is none of the city's business if the commission allows hogs and coal to be freighted around the loop," asserted Mr. Busch. "Moreover, there is nothing now to prevent Samuel Insull from bringing the Aurora and Elgin and South Bend line cars into the loop and crowding off the regular 'L' cars. He has only to get a permit from the commission."

An Indiscriminate Permit?

But even graver problems for the city are seen by Mr. Busch, Mr. Doty and others. They believe that the decision, inferentially at least, gives the elevated lines an indeterminate permit to operate on the streets of Chicago so long as the commerce commission sees fit to allow them. The city, they believe, could be overruled and would be helpless should it attempt to cancel the elevated lines' fifty year franchises when they expire between 1930 and 1944.

Although the lines now are merged into the Chicago Rapid Transit company, the franchise ordinances of the various elevated companies were adopted separately and end at different dates—the loop and Lake street lines in 1930, the south side lines in 1938, and the other great side lines in 1942, and the north side line in 1944.

Attorneys Give Reasons.

The attorneys base their fears that the franchise may become perpetual on several points.

First, they argue, if the North Shore-Rapid Transit contract is valid under the state law, the elevated structure must remain so long as the contract is in force, to permit the North Shore cars to run, irrespective of a cancellation of the Rapid Transit lines' franchises by the city. Further, they say, the contract may be renewed again and again.

Second, the attorneys point out that the Supreme court decision knocks out the city's contention that the franchise ordinances prohibit the elevated lines from entering into an agreement with North Shore company without the consent of the city. It also rejects the city's contention that, under the franchise, traffic on the elevated structure must be confined to passenger traffic.

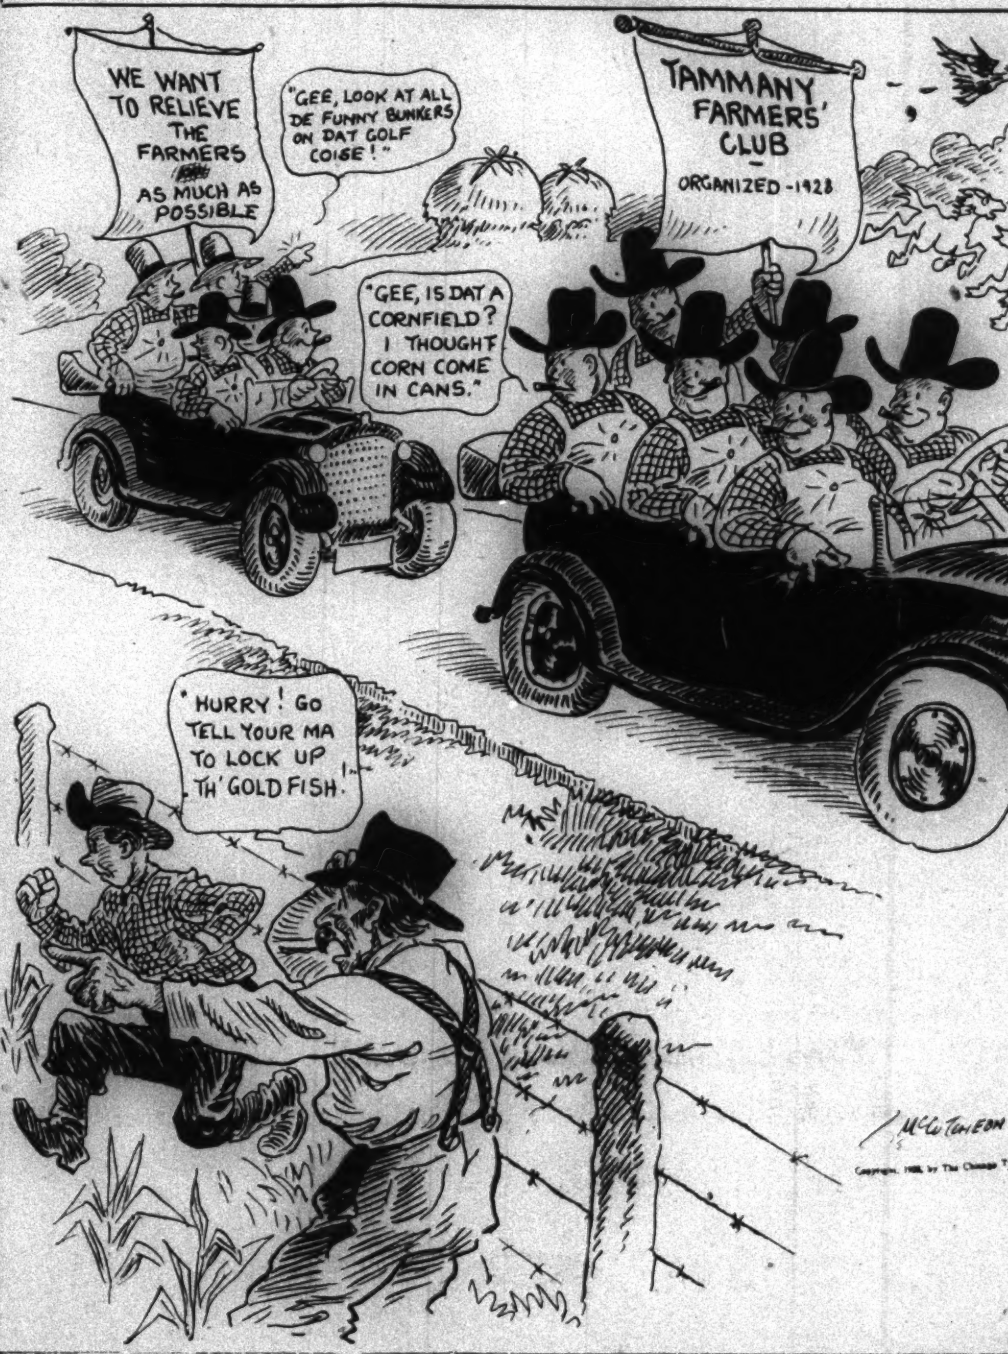

Inasmuch as the franchisees violated, the city held, the action of the Illinois commerce commission in approving such violations was null and void.

High Court Decision Quoted.

But all of this the Supreme court disposed of in one sweeping paragraph of its decision which read as follows:

"Section 8 of article 1 of the Public Utilities act, as revised in 1921, (Continued on page 13, column 3.)

Rome Flyers Near Brazil; Radio Shows

BULLETIN.

BUENOS AIRES, July 5 (Thursday).—(AP)—A dispatch to La Nación today from Pernambuco said that radio signals from the Italian trans-Atlantic flyers, Capt. Ferrarini and Maj. Delprete had been received at Natal, Brazil. The plane was believed to be close to the port, which is about 150 miles north of Pernambuco.

BULLETIN.

RIO JANEIRO, July 5.—(AP)—A radio message from an English steamer to the chief of telegraphs at Natal today gave the position of the Italian trans-Atlantic flyers at 55 minutes after midnight as 10 minutes north and 28 degrees west. (This would place the plane about 800 miles northeast of Pernambuco.)

ROME, July 4.—(AP)—Two Italian airmen were tonight believed to be somewhere over the south Atlantic. With more than two-thirds of their flight behind them, they are attempting to fly from Rome to Pernambuco, Brazil, on the mainland of South America.

Capt. Arturo Ferrarini and Maj. Carlo P. Del Prete were sighted at 5 p. m. Greenwich time above the Cape Verde islands, radio dispatches from that place to Buenos Aires said.

St. Vincent, Cape Verde islands, is approximately 3,000 miles from Rome and 1,400 miles from Pernambuco. But the 1,400 miles to Pernambuco is regarded as the most dangerous lap of the flight, though just about one-half the distance already traversed, being all over open water.

When sighted at Cape Verde, the two airmen were 22 hours out of Rome, with the remarkable average of better than 135 miles an hour speed in their plane from that city behind them. Should they maintain this speed, and keep to their course, they would reach Pernambuco at 8 a. m. Chicago daylight savings time.

There is no certainty of the airmen landing at Pernambuco, however, if they still have fuel and can obtain their bearings. It was said prior to their departure they might continue further south, possibly to Rio Janeiro, or other Brazilian coastal cities.

RAINFALL HERE CATCHES UP WITH 1928 DEFICIENCY

Despite the moderation in temperature and the almost unseasonable cool hours that followed the rain in the evening, three more deaths in which the weather was a factor were reported yesterday in Chicago, bringing the total of deaths in the last two days to ten. The forecast for today is mostly fair with possibly more thunderstorms.

In spite of the unusual amount of rain in the last two weeks, and the flooded streets and basements of recent days, yesterday was the first time this year that an excess of rainfall was reported by the weather bureau. The excess was .08 of an inch since Jan. 1. On June 19, at the beginning of the present damp spell, the deficiency of rainfall was 6.63 inches.

The deaths attributed in part to the heat were those of Albert Rosenberg, 55, of 1522 North Central Park avenue, seized with a heart attack; Albert Johnson, 31, of 1200 Wellington, Washington hospital after he had collapsed in the street; and an unidentified man about 35, found lying on the sidewalk at Crawford avenue and Roosevelt road.

Only a Few Bruises.

The only injuries he suffered in his 200 feet drop over the brink of the cataract were a few minor bruises on his face and shoulders.

Lussier said tonight that a weight designed to keep him in an upright position while afloat broke loose soon after he took to the water and the ball rolled over and over throughout the trip.

Inside the outer covering of the ball was a canvas lining. Then came the steel framework and then another canvas lining. Inside of all was a harness-like arrangement in which the occupant strapped himself in a rigid position. He entered the ball through a small opening at the top.

Carries Supply of Oxygen.

Lussier carried sufficient oxygen in tanks to keep himself alive for 40 hours. After entering his queer contraption he pulled down the round cover of the opening at the top and sealed it with tape.

Lussier said he got the idea of going over the falls in 1911 when he worked in a factory where he was made the specially constructed barrel in which Bobbie Leach of Niagara Falls successfully negotiated the cataract trip.

One other person besides Leach and Lussier survived the falls plunge. That was Annie Edson Taylor, who went over in a barrel in 1901. A man who tried the stunt in a wooden barrel in 1923 was dashed to death on the rocks at the foot of the cataract.

Rides Niagara Falls Safely in Rubber Ball

Buffalo, N. Y., July 4.—[Special]—A 35-year old French Canadian traveling salesman from Springfield, Mass., is the third person in history to make the perilous plunge over Niagara Falls and live to tell of it. He is Jean Lussier, who went over the Horseshoe falls this afternoon in a specially constructed rubber ball, eleven feet in diameter. A crowd estimated at 150,000 lined both banks to watch Lussier's feat.

At 2:30 p. m. Lussier's queer contrivance was cut loose from the motor boats towing it at Navy Island, a quarter of a mile above the falls. Fifty minutes later, rivermen stationed on the bank a few hundred feet below the falls brought the ball to shore and extricated its occupant.

Lussier said tonight that a weight designed to keep him in an upright position while afloat broke loose soon after he took to the water and the ball rolled over and over throughout the trip.

Inside the outer covering of the ball was a canvas lining. Then came the steel framework and then another canvas lining. Inside of all was a harness-like arrangement in which the occupant strapped himself in a rigid position. He entered the ball through a small opening at the top.

Carries Supply of Oxygen.

Girl and Youth Perish as Their Canoe Upsets

One girl and eight young men were drowned and a small boy died of firecracker burns during Fourth of July outings and celebrations in the Chicago area. A number of injuries from firecrackers were reported.

The girl who lost her life was Miss Eloise Root, 19 years old, a senior at Oak Park High school. She and Lemuel Eddy, 20, of Anamosa, N. D., a Northwestern university student, were drowned in the Des Plaines river near North avenue, Maywood, when the canoe in which they and two others were riding upset late Tuesday night. Last night the bodies of both were being sought by county highway police of the Morton Grove station and by Maywood authorities.

Two companions of the drowning victims, Miss Grace Bertolini, 19 years old, 4315 North Monticello avenue, a music teacher, who was soon to be married to Eddy, and Carl Rutledge, 27 North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, escaped from the river.

Two Drown in Fox River.

Raymond Edwards, 21, and Austin Holt, 18, both of Elgin, were drowned when their canoe capsized in the Fox river just below the Kimball street dam in Elgin. The youths had paddled into the rapids for the thrill of it. Edwards' body was soon recovered, but that of Holt was still being sought by Elgin police and firemen.

Another drowning victim was Edward Kogut, 18 years old, 817 North Hermitage avenue, who perished while swimming in the Des Plaines river near River road and Milwaukee avenue. Young Kogut failed to come to the surface after making a deep dive. It is believed he was caught in a swift under current of the river which is swollen from the recent rains.

Camper Is Another Victim.

John C. Sullivan, 30 years old, 1640 North Bernard street, was drowned in the Fox river south of Elgin while swimming near his summer camp. He was seized with a cramp and went under before aid could reach him.

A seventh victim of drowning was Reinhold Heinrich, 27 years old, believed to reside at 2432 West 13th street. His body was found in the Fox river near McHenry. Heinrich lost his balance while fishing from the bank of the river and fell into the water. It was thought.

Andrew Walther of Oak Park was drowned late yesterday when his outboard motorboat, in which he was riding on Round lake, near Waukegan, overturned.

An unidentified bather, about 24 years old, perished in Lake Michigan at Gary, Ind. His body was found by other bathers.

Boy Is Fireworks Victim.

James Basso, 11 years old, 6314 Addison street, was the only one in Chicago to die of fireworks injuries. He was fatally burned on Tuesday night when a pan of gasoline became ignited from a firecracker thrown by his cousin, Edward Roenger, 11, of 1143 South Kedzie avenue. The boy died yesterday at Belmont hospital.

A. W. Weston and his wife, of 1205 Glenwood avenue, were seriously injured when they were struck by slugs from a shotgun fired by George H. Schutz, 25, of 2134 Maple avenue, Evanston, as they drove by the Schutz home. They were taken to St. Francis hospital. Evanston, and Schutz was arrested.

Chicago officials expressed themselves well pleased with the comparatively light toll of fireworks casualties. Four children were killed by firecrackers as a result of the Fourth celebration of last year, and the 1927 record of injuries was said to be even heavier.

Loewenstein's trip to the United States was for the purpose of conferring with bankers about hydro-electric projects, artificial silk, and other matters of international finance.

A large number of secretaries, aviators, chauffeurs, valets, and other domestics accompanied Capt. and Mrs. Loewenstein. The entourage occupied space costing $30,000 on the Ile de France. Upon his arrival in New York he engaged twenty-two rooms on the third floor of the Hotel Ambassador. His bill was something like $300 daily.

He was a broad shouldered, thickset figure with dark eyes and quick movements, tireless and apparently endlessly without nerves. He was 51 years old.

LOEWENSTEIN

STEPS FROM HIS PLANE TO DEATH

Three Flyers Killed Near Joliet.

(Picture on back page.)

LONDON, July 4.—(AP)—Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, whose fame was world-wide, was drowned today in one of the strangest fatalities in the history of commercial aviation.

The plane in which he was a passenger was crossing from Crocydon, near London, to Brussels when port where a crowd waiting to greet the German-Irish flyers rushed up to his ship with a roar of welcome before the error was discovered. Capt. Loewenstein spent several weeks in this country and in Canada on business, traveling almost wholly by air.

Three Fall to Death, Flying Near Joliet

Two men and a boy were killed late yesterday afternoon when the biplane in which they were stung flying fell 1,500 feet to the ground three and one-half miles southeast of Joliet. The crumpling of the right wing of the plane under the stress of stunt flying is blamed for the crash.

The plane landed in a cornfield on the farm of George Weiting, the engine digging its way six feet into the ground. All three victims were dead, every bone in their bodies broken, when they were taken from the wreckage. They were:

Barney Harms, 23, the licensed pilot, who had been flying around Joliet for about three years.

John Blossing, 15 years old, a Joliet butcher boy.

John W. Parks, 29, of Joliet, a friend of the pilot.

No Fire After Crash.

The mangled bodies were quickly taken from the wreckage by Weiting, for the plane did not burn after the impact.

Harms, the pilot, was a partner of Bernard Wilhelm of Joliet, the two of them operating three sightseeing planes on a field known as Wilhelm's field, 3 miles from Joliet on the South Chicago street road. The plane in which the three men were killed, according to Wilhelm after the tragedy, had been inspected and characterized thoroughly airworthy last Tuesday.

Two Beg for Ride.

The Wilhelm field had been well patronized yesterday. Records show he and Harms had taken up more than 100 persons on sightseeing flights. According to Wilhelm, Parks and young Blossing, both friends of Harms, had been about the field all day asking for a ride—they had no money.

Late in the afternoon Harms offered to take his two friends up.

"They insisted they wanted him to do some stunt flying," Wilhelm said. "They wanted him particularly to do a couple of loops. Harms didn't want to do it and demurred. Then Parks and the boy said they didn't want to go up at all if he was afraid to loop the loop with them."

"They appeared to be taunting Harms into it and he finally said he would do it."

"They took off and flew over Joliet. While flying over the town Harms did one loop, then he flew out southeast. When he was about three-quarters of a mile from the field here, over the farm, I saw him go into another loop, and as he was coming out of it I saw the right upper wing break and tear away from the machine."

"The next minute the plane went into a nose dive and crashed straight to the ground."

A freak stunt flying accident in which neither the pilot nor his mechanic was more than scratched, but in which two pedestrians were sent to a hospital, was reported about the same time from Lake Front park in Whiting, Ind.

The injured men are Glenn Rhodes and Gorman Smith, both of Hammond, Ind. They were struck by the plane as it fell about 100 feet. The former suffered a fractured hip and the latter a fractured arm and leg. Stephen Darius of South Bend, Ind., the pilot, was cut about the face and Herbert Johnston of Montpelier, O., his mechanic, was scratched. They had been stunt flying when the plane fell into the crowd.

CITY DRAGS ITS WAY HOME IN 600,000 AUTOS

Traffic Heaviest in History, but No Fatality.

Thousands upon thousands of automobiles late last night were still creeping Chicagoward over the highways that lead like the spokes of a giant wheel from the green pastures of the country into this great hub, the city.

The great trek started late in the afternoon. In mid-evening it was at its height, and the long, seemingly endless streams of cars were barely moving on their way into the city over the narrow, inadequate highways. By 11 p. m. the pace had increased to ten and fifteen miles an hour, but it was midnight before there was any freedom of driving.

600,000 Cars Return.

County highway police estimated that 600,000 automobiles moved back into the city in the night hours. And the wonder to them all was that not a single automobile fatality, not even a serious mishap, attended that great movement of population in Cook county.

Many of those who came back had been gone on excursions to the lakes or to other spots in the open over the week end, having left last Saturday. Other thousands were motorists who went only for the day into the country. But when the sun started to sink late in the afternoon all started back, all joined the processions that filled every highway leading into town.

Maj. George A. Quinlan, county superintendent of highways, and James L. Devereux, chief of the highway police, laid the lack of accidents to the fact that extra details of highway police were at all the dangerous spots.

City Streets Jammed, Too.

And the increased traffic was not alone confined to the country or the highways just adjacent to the city. During mid-afternoon, while the highways were still comparatively open, the city boulevards and the main arteries were fairly choked with cars. Those coming into the loop from Evanston and other north shore suburbs and those from Oak Park and suburbs to the west and south, all said traffic during the heavy city hours was the heaviest of the year.

County highway police at Morton Grove, northwest of the city, and at Willow Springs, directly west, reported the roads were rather open until almost dark when they became badly congested.

To the south of the city along the Dixie highway, the county police reported, it was less congested. There was a continuing stream of cars but the movement all along the line was facilitated by the fact there were no detours.

Joliet Road Packed.

Highway No. 4, leading in from Starved Rock through Joliet, was one of the roads that was unusually congested all through the incoming rush. Mannheim road, at Lake street, was a spot where the congestion during the evening was acute.

At midnight 300 automobiles were stalled on the highway which runs through the main section of the village of Franklin Park, while the Masonic Temple, a two story frame building, burned. The fire destroyed most of the interior of the building. There were no automobile deaths within the limits of Cook county yesterday.

23 DROWN AS STORMS SWEEP NEW YORK AREA

Squalls in Boston Take Nine More Lives.

New York, July 4.—(Special).—The warmest day of the year sent 3,000,000 people to the various Long Island, Westchester, and New Jersey resorts for the Fourth of July holiday today. But swiftly gathering clouds, followed by sudden and severe thunderstorms after 6 o'clock, sent the holiday seekers rushing for shelter.

A wind of almost hurricane force swept over the metropolitan area, leaving in its passing torn trees, wreckage of all sorts, and shipping in turmoil.

One gust stopped an automobile race at Woodbridge, N. J., ruined a yacht race on Gravesend bay, upset an airplane at Curtiss field, and overturned two boats in the Hudson near Croton Point.

At least eight persons were drowned in the squall which struck in that vicinity. There were fifteen other drownings reported in and about the city.

Nine Drown in Boston.

Boston, Mass., July 4.—(Special).—Severe electrical storms, reaching cyclonic proportions in many localities, swept greater Boston late today, sending hundreds of thousands of holiday pleasure seekers scurrying to shelter. Nine drownings were reported tonight in the city proper and nearby water resorts. The mercury officially reached 91 degrees, one degree lower than yesterday, the first day of the present heat wave. Late tonight no fatal motor accidents or deaths from July Fourth explosives had been reported.

Aerial Bomb Kills Boy.

Peabody, Mass., July 4.—(AP)—Ralph Wood, 8, was killed tonight when an aerial bomb exploded in his face fracturing his skull.

German Cannon Awakens.

ROOSEVELT, WESTERN SET AS CITY'S NEW POPULATION CENTER

Chicago's center of population today is at Roosevelt road and Western avenue, two miles north of the geographic center at 37th and Western avenue. It is shown in a survey finished yesterday by Municipal Librarian Frederick Rex.

"By center of population is meant that point from which the entire population is equally distributed in all directions," Mr. Rex explained. "This point in 1860 was near the corner of Racine avenue and 18th street; in 1908 it was at Roosevelt road and Racine avenue; in 1916 it had gradually moved westward to the corner of Ashland and 16th street; and in 1920 to the intersection of Harrison and Robey streets."

The geographical center also has moved westward due to annexations, Mr. Rex said. In 1908 it was fixed at Ashland avenue and 37th street.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

SAFE AND SANE
IS CHICAGO'S
GREATEST 4THThousands Celebrate as Sun Shines for Day.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Safe, sane, and eminently successful. That was Chicago's Fourth.

It was a record day in numerous particulars. During the late morning hours and the entire afternoon the weather was the finest and the number of celebrators the greatest of any July 4 in recent years.

Following close on a soaking rain in the early morning came a welcome drop in temperature, and clouds obscured the sun as thousands of Chicagoans scurried in automobiles to this or that destination outside the city limits. Later the sun shone brightly and quickly dried the parks and playgrounds where other multitudes gathered for golf, tennis, baseball, and games.

Showers Again in Evening.

After the fun was over and the crowds were returning home in the evening the showers again fell. Night fireworks programs in several communities were called off on account of this rain, but at Navy pier the pyrotechnic exhibit was given as scheduled. More than 50,000 persons watched the display there, it was estimated by Charles Cassidy, superintendent of the pier.

The forest preserves, Lincoln, Jackson and other large parks, and the city's beaches drew record crowds. At Lincoln park officials declared the throngs who lunched, rested and engaged in sports during the day approximated 300,000. Similar crowds were reported at the south side center, particularly at Jackson park beach, where the sand was practically cleared by the bathers.

Not even the early rain dismayed the thousands who had determined to picnic in the forest preserves, and though the ground was wet and partly flooded, enough dry spots seemed available to accommodate all who came, estimated at about 300,000 by the authorities. At dam number 2 on Milwaukee avenue, north of Des Plaines, 1,000 persons spent the day. No accidents of any kind were reported to the police there.

War Monument Dedicated.

In a solemnly reverent ceremony at St. Adalbert's cemetery on Milwaukee avenue, north of Devon, the Polish citizens of Chicago dedicated a monument to the 350 world war veterans of that nationality, in the presence of many thousands of their countrymen. Cardinal Mundelein officiated at the dedication ceremony, assisted by a score of priests from parishes throughout the city.

Preceding the blessing of the great granite obelisk, flanked by life-sized statues of a doughboy, a marine, a soldier and a Polish soldier, Judge Edmund K. Jarecki presented the deed to the monument and spoke briefly in Polish, commending Cardinal Mundelein particularly for the gift of the plot of ground on which the monument rests, and the foundation.

Then as orphaned children of the dead veterans sang in the language of their ancestors, the American flags concealing the figures were drawn away by mothers of the men thus honored. The mothers are members of the Gold Star Fathers and Mothers' association. It was this organization under whose direction the fund for the monument was raised.

Tributes to the dead were given by Cardinal Mundelein, Senator Charles E. Deeney, Attorney General Oscar Culliford, Howard P. Savage, past national commander of the American Legion; Maj. Gen. Paul Malone; Capt. Wuest, acting commander at Great Lakes, and Dr. A. Pietrzykowski, representing the Polish army.

Parade Opens Ceremonies.

Anthony Carnecki, collector of customs, was in charge of the ceremonies, which opened with a parade to the cemetery, led by a squadron of police. Riverside park was the scene of the annual field day and picnic of the Canis-God Guards, at which thousands of Chicagoans of Irish descent gathered. Features of the day were athletic contests, a football match between the Pease and the Kevin Barry teams, and American and Irish step dancing.

Hinsdale observed the Fourth with a community celebration at the new commercial building erected to the memory of Hinsdale soldiers and sailors killed in the wars. Raising of the flag on a 100 foot flagpole, and addresses by Gen. George H. Harries of Chicago and Philip H. Clarke, general chairman of the committee in charge of the building, marked the ceremony, which were held at 10:30 A.M.

Rogers Park held a program and dedication under the auspices of Rogers Park post 108 of the American Legion and Chicago Camp 54 of the Polish American war veterans. At Shedd beach a flag raising ceremony took place, followed by the presentation to citizens of the community of a mounted howitzer. Then there was a parade.

Alden Descendants Gather.

Descendants of John and Priscilla Alden gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Foster Alden in Winnetka for a basket picnic, and to hear Rev. Walter Spooner speak on "Friendship between Mayflowers."

Armstrong Community council sponsored a celebration at Armstrong school in West Rogers Park, where the younger generation was especially interested in the matter of education. A track meet for children, numerous novelty races, day-long fireworks, a band concert, and other features helped to make the day enjoyable.

Hundreds of members of the Steubenville club spent the day at Winchester, where a replica of Baron Steubenville's home in Germany in 1776 has been erected as a clubhouse at the Steubenville recreational center of the organization. Kenilworth, Winnetka, Rogers Park, and many other suburban communities also held festivities.

BELGRADE, July 4.—Faced with Croatian threats demanding complete independence from Serbia as a result of the killing of two Croatian deputies in the skupstina, the Jugo-Slavian government today resigned.

The king is negotiating with party leaders in an effort to form a coalition government answering the demands of Croatia, Bosnia, and Herzegovina to equal parliamentary and governmental representation with Serbia, which, although comprising only one-third the population, has been dominating the Jugo-Slavian government since its inception.

Italy has already announced that she will refuse to accept the ratification of the Nettuno treaty unless it is approved by the Croatian deputies.

EVANSTON SHUNS
FOURTH FETE, SO
DAWES IS SILENTCrowd Too Small for Vice President to Speak.

Vice President Charles G. Dawes was scheduled to make the principal Independence day address at Evanston's celebration of the Fourth yesterday morning—but he did not speak for want of a large enough crowd to hear him. Mayor Charles H. Bartlett, who with the Vice President occupied the leading automobile in the July 4 parade, also omitted his address from the program.

The great majority of Evanstonians, it would appear from the events of yesterday, have broken away from the old traditions as to how and where to spend July 4. Consequently when the announced parade, led by the automobile containing the Vice President and the mayor, had proceeded from south Evanston to Boltwood park, where a reviewing stand was erected, it was found that only about 200 persons were gathered to hear the addresses. Apparently the remainder of the citizens were in their own homes or already on their way to outings.

Without waiting for the last of the parade to pass the stand, Vice President Dawes and Mayor Bartlett left and were driven to their homes. Then the announcement was made that there would be no speaking.

25 HURT WHEN FIREWORKS LET GO IN BIG CROWD

Lamar, Mo., July 4.—(AP)—At least twenty-five persons were injured, fourteen seriously, tonight when a truck load of fireworks exploded prematurely in a crowd of 5,000 persons assembled in the public square.

In a stampede that followed the blast many persons were trampled. Several children were injured.

The blast occurred when some one tossed a lighted firecracker under the truck just as the display was about to begin.

YEGGS BORE HOLE
IN WALL, ROB TWO
SAFES OF $8,000

Yeggs who obtained entrance by boring a large hole through the brick wall at the side of the building, early yesterday blew two safes in the office at the rear of the John P. Harding Market company store at 731 West Madison street, and escaped with $8,000, and some valuable papers. According to A. F. Bastien, vice president and general manager of the company, the safe blowers gained entrance after spending hours drilling the hole through the wall from an adjoining building. The market is only three blocks from the Desplains street police station and less than 200 feet from Madison and Halsted streets, known as the busiest West side corner.

SET FIRECRACKER IN HIS TEETH AS HE DOZES; ALL OUT

Camden, N. J., July 4.—(AP)—William Ingram, 40, of this city, was in a hospital tonight with his teeth blasted away, the victim of a Fourth of July prank.

While he sat asleep on the porch of his home, presumably with his mouth agape, a practical joker thrust a large firecracker between his teeth, lighted the fuse, and fled. The firecracker exploded and Ingram dropped to the floor. His shrieks brought neighbors. Physicians pronounced his condition serious. All his teeth were gone. Police had no clue as to the identity of the practical joker.

4 ARE DROWNED
WHEN LAUNCH
IS OVERTURNED

Estral Beach, Mich., July 4.—(AP)—Four men were drowned and a fifth had a narrow escape here today when a boat in which they were rowing was overturned in the back wash of a speeding launch.

Persons who witnessed the accident from the beach were able to rescue one of the men.

Bodies of the four victims were recovered tonight. They were identified as Frank Rice, 35; John Gorski, 40; George Grams, 28; and Ed Kublinski, 38. All were residents of Detroit.

GAMBLER SLAIN
IN NEW YORK'S
5TH GANG KILLING

New York, July 4.—(Special).—Another underworld murder was committed today. This one was apparently the result of a gambler's feud. Sylvester Garafalo, proprietor of a dice game in the Bronx, was shot twice in the back as he sat in a touring car. It was the fifth gangster killing in two weeks.

Harry Vessey, fast-talking gambler, who weighs 180 pounds and wears horn rimmed glasses, was arrested tonight and charged with the murder of James Senter, a gambler, whose body was found in Brooklyn early yesterday morning with seven bullets through the head.

2 YOUTHS STEAL CLOTHING, CASH FOR CELEBRATION

Two armed youths, driving a low slung, rickety coupe, yesterday in raids on two northwest side haberdashery stores completely outfitted themselves with suits and silk shirts and took enough money for the evening at the road houses for which police believe they were headed.

They first went to the store of William Miller at 3121 Armitage avenue, forced Miller into a rear room, took $50 from the cash register, and then carefully selected a dozen silk shirts from his counter and shelves.

They next went to the store of R. Mittenhall, 1404 Belmont avenue, and locked the proprietor and one customer in the back room. While one stood guard the other rifled the cash register of $50, and selected a half dozen suits from Mittenhall's stock. When the first had made his selections, he stood guard while the other selected a half a dozen more suits. They took $35 from the customer, whose name police did not obtain.

Kills Himself in Home;
Note Tells of Threat

Joseph Gross, 56 years old, shot and killed himself yesterday in his home at 751 West North avenue. He left a note, addressed to his wife, saying that a neighbor had threatened to murder him unless he committed suicide before July 5. Police questioned the neighbor, but gave little credence to the letter.

Prohibition Foes to Seek Two Dakota Congressmen

Washington, D. C., July 4.—(AP)—The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment will wage a campaign next fall in two of the three congressional districts in North Dakota to elect representatives who will "oppose prohibition," Henry H. Curran, president of the association, announced today. Mr. Curran said the campaign would be waged in the second and third districts, which last week in a state referendum voted to repeal the state prohibition law. The first district, however, rolled up sufficient votes to defeat the repeal proposal.

COOLIDGE HAS BIG DAY; GETS TROUT FOR CAMERA MEN

Reporters Enjoy Birthday Cake and a Smoke.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
 President Coolidge celebrated his birthday and his fifty-sixth birthday by doing something for which every fisherman would give him credit. He caught a trout at the time he wanted to catch a camera man, under the eyes of a half dozen photographers.

The President felt so good about this that he gave a little impromptu party on the lawn of Cedar Island house, inviting the photographers and cameramen present to help him with the birthday cake sent him by Mrs. A. L. Cowen of Duluth, Minn., and make a cigar with him. There were no other guests at the lodge today, but Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman of Wisconsin, who was the speaker at the President's celebration today, was invited to spend tomorrow at the lodge.

May Have Political Aspect.
 He probably will stay all night. The governor will be the first visitor the President has had, with the exception of William M. Butler, and the visit may be regarded as politically significant, as Gov. Zimmerman is running for re-election and is an earnest supporter.

The cameramen have tried for two days to get a good picture of the President fishing. Last summer in the Blue Hills he cast a spinner around them, but there were no results and the picture was not regarded as a success.

Today they asked for a picture and the President said he would try to accommodate them. So he got into a canoe with his guide and his collie, and went up the river to one of the little lakes near the lodge. He has his new fishing rod, given him as a birthday present by the Superior Boy Scouts. The President had tied two flies on a royal coachman and a black cat. The photographers followed him in canoes.

Casts Flies on Water.
 Once he nearly snagged his boatman, and another time his line caught a tree, but the flies hit the water in good fashion and were manipulated slightly under the surface.
 "Not so fast," his guide cautioned him once. Then, when the cameras aimed on him, he did a remarkable thing. Two trout rose and he hooked them at the same time, one on each fly. He was beaming by this time, as happy as a boy. He fished a little more with the flies, then said: "Hand me that spinner." The guide gave him another rod, with spinner attached, and the President cut it from this line and attached it to the fly rod. He began to cross the pond. There was a strike and a trout leaped out of the water, hooked. "Caught another," called the President, and proceeded to reel in.

Hooks a Fourth One.
 That was enough pictures, the President remarked, and the party started back for the lodge. On the way back, hitting a deep pool in the river, the President hooked a fourth fish.

"Get this one," he called to the photographers. By this time they had more pictures than they had dreamed of.

On land again, the President had his guide bring out a 3½ pound trout which he had caught several days ago. It had been kept in the live box. Mr. Coolidge held it, struggling and splashing him, in a net while more pictures were taken. Then he led the way to the cake and took pains to see that every one was supplied. The dog even had a piece.

As a fisherman, the President had a perfect day.

CROWD RULES AS MILLIONAIRES LOSE BALL GAME

Umpire Rumsey Changes Mind in Lake Forest.

Henry A. Rumsey, Board of Trade member, amateur umpire, and former mayor of Lake Forest, evolved a new method of deciding the winner of a baseball game yesterday when the Eight O'clock boys played the Market Square team in their fourth annual Fourth of July contest, for the Lake Forest championship.

The Eight O'clock boys are those in Lake Forest whose chauffeurs daily trundle them to and from the Chicago and North Western railway's "Millionaire Special."

Three hundred and sixty-four days a year they are Mister this and Mister that and are answered "Yes, sir" and occasionally "No, sir."

Just Good Fellows.
 On the Fourth of July piebald Lake Forest knows them as Al and Art and Bob. Sandlot baseballers, and pretty good fellows at that.

And they know how to play ball. Then things happened fast. Ed Baldwin, the Market Square boys' Babe Ruth, knocked a Texas leaguer through several million dollars' worth of ball players and Ed and the ball and Catcher Hotz arrived at home plate all at once.

"He's out," yelled Umpire Rumsey. "Boo! Kill that ump! Safe by a mile!" roared the bleachers, drowning out debutante cheers.

Sock! went a pop bottle, landing near the umpire.

"Beg your pardon," shouted Former Mayor Rumsey without a moment's hesitation. "he's safe; the eyes have it."

Then loud were the cheers for both teams. The Market Square boys had won their first game in four years by a score of 6 to 5.

There's Art Tuttle, who is still remembered at Yale for his skill with the bat. And there's Hug Wilson, who pitched a name for himself at Hotchkiss not so long ago. There's also Mayor Albert B. Dick Jr., another Yale man, and Attorney Calvin Trowbridge and Alexander Revell Jr., John McIlvaine, Waldo Allen, Hempstead Washburne Jr., and Robert Hotz.

Until yesterday Lake Forest's college-trained sluggers had never known defeat. But Walt Henderson, who runs a gasoline filling station, was on the mound for the Market Square boys and Walt knows as much about baseball as he does about the grease cups on a limousine. So when they came to the ninth inning Walt's cohorts were neck and neck with the champions.

Dispute at Home Plate.

A thundershower was better than two," said Umpire Rumsey after the game. "This is a democratic game and the majority should rule."

STOP AT TRAFFIC LIGHT, ROBBED BY TWO BANDITS

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Sikka, 2853 South Hamlin avenue, were robbed last night by two bandits who climbed into the rear seat of their sedan while they were waiting at the stoplight at Washington boulevard and Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park. The bandits forced Sikka to drive to the rear of 205 South Elmwood avenue, where Mrs. Sikka was robbed of a wrist watch valued at $25 and her husband of a Masonic ring and $5.

Two Arrested for Selling Fireworks Within City

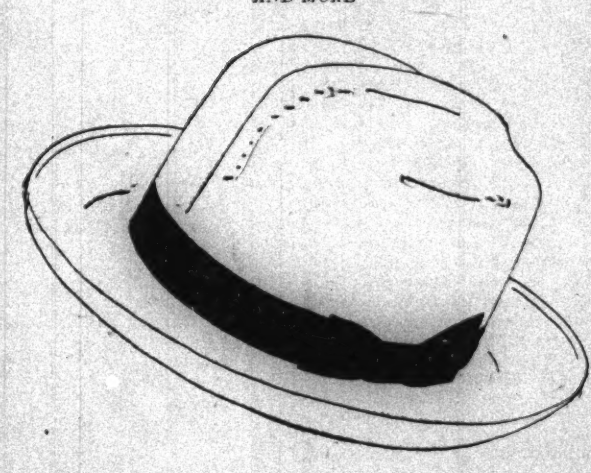

Albert Harris, proprietor of a confectionary store at 2128 Milwaukee avenue, was arrested yesterday on a charge of selling fireworks within the city limits. Max Shalitky, 3631 West Polk street, was arrested on the same charge by Lieut. David Schwartz of the Shakespeare avenue station, who said Shalitky was peddling firecrackers to children.

PRE-HISTORIC BISON FOSSILS FOUND IN U. S.

Albuquerque, N. M., July 4.—(Special.)—Excavations in northern New Mexico near the headwaters of the Cimarron river now under way are expected to reveal a prehistoric civilization which existed 20,000 years ago. Barnum Brown, curator of the American Museum of Natural History, of New York, made public here yesterday, the first findings of his excavating party. Fossils of eight bison of an extinct species and seven spearheads unlike anything used by modern Indians, have been unearthed in the first 60 square feet excavated. Mr. Brown said the spearheads are made of chalcidony and jasper and that the craftsmanship is equalled only by those excavated in Egypt. The scene of the excavation is where 20,000 years ago an ancient lake was located, Mr. Brown believes.

AL TELLS WORLD HE'S LOYAL SON OF TAMMANY

Cheers Rock Wigwag as He Explains Why.

country 139 years that is not all right?"

Cheers and cries of "Yes, how can it?"

Then Al tells them why Tammany has thrived for 139 years and why "in a very short time" (pointing to Old Gentleman Voorhis) "it will have a grand sachem close to that."

Laughter and cheers then, and pleased nods from the 99 year old Voorhis, who is still wearing his plug hat.

To wear your plug hat while presiding is one of the privileges of being a grand sachem.

Well, says Al, what has kept Tammany alive for 139 years is:

"... its great human appeal to everybody in every walk and in every station of life."

Now he is speaking rapidly, with a frequent pounding gesture with the right hand, and he swings into this: "I read the invitation to this meeting, and its wording gave me the answer to that question about why Tammany has lived. It said:

"All citizens of the United States and lovers of America are cordially invited to unite with us."

Prolonged cheering.

Al slashes ahead.

Al, hoarse and sweating now, lifts his right hand for silence. Silence reigns. He slashes into it with this:

"All citizens, all lovers of America—that is it! That is in the strictest possible conformity with the vital principle of the declaration about the equality of man. We don't care whether he is rich or whether he is poor; whether he walks up to Tammany Hall, or whether he comes up to it in an automobile, or in the old days, in a coach and four. We care not about his station in life (cheers); we care nothing about his religious belief (cheers). We only want to know one thing—that he is a lover of America (cheers), and that he has the aims and purposes of the society to perpetuate the memory of Jefferson, the memory of Washington, the signing of the immortal document to give America her freedom, and that he is standing behind the constitution which gives life and fidelity to the declaration. That is all we want to know."

Repeated volleys and waves of cheering.

He is giving them fun along with patriotic appeal.

And is He Nominated?

In presenting Al to the audience, the venerable Voorhis has recalled how a year ago this day, when Al was on this platform, he had been presented to the people as the man who was to be the candidate of one, at least, if not both the parties of this great country. And he recalls how Al had risen and said, "I accept the nomination!"

Today Al catches up that reminiscence, saying:

"I have a distinct recollection of the incident recalled; by the worthy grand sachem. In the last five years I have been nominated at least three times in Tammany Hall; I was nominated at at least 200 dinners; I have been nominated at weddings; at christenings; at the laying of cornerstones; at the breaking of ground for new buildings; at the opening or dedication of new state edifices for various and sundry purposes."

Then a dramatic pause and a slowly broadening grin and the audience is breathless.

Then the words:

"But, in Texas!"

The words are accompanied with an imitation of one of those hebraic "Oll Cui" gestures which indicates that Al Smith is at loss for further words to express his feelings on nominations in general and Texas in particular.

The people rock back and forth with laughter.

He suddenly stops fooling and plunges into admonition—admonition

J. W. GOOD IS STILL UNDECIDED ABOUT DIRECTING CAMPAIGN

James W. Good, who helped direct efforts to obtain Herbert Hoover's nomination for the presidency, was back in Chicago yesterday after a visit with President Coolidge in Wisconsin.

Undetermined as to whether he would become Republican western manager.

Before the convention, Mr. Good managed all of the states west of Pennsylvania for Mr. Hoover and various party leaders, including Dr. Herbert Work, chairman of the national committee, have asked him to continue his activities during the campaign.

Mr. Good has not said when he will make known his decision.

Roy O. West, national committee man from Illinois, was to confer with Mr. Good today regarding the selection of a Hoover headquarters location in Chicago. Approximately 10,000 square feet of office space will be needed, Mr. West estimated.

Against making Independence day an excuse for golf and a run into the country, and not a thought for what the day means, what blood and tears and life it cost, and what blessings it conferred on posterity. In all that passage Al Smith is grave, simple, intimate. He is downright good.

No clowning now.

Listen to this:

"Now the wonderful thing that can be said of the Tammany society is that it has for 139 years, at personal sacrifice to its own members, made it their business, in pursuance and in accordance with their constitution, to read in the great wigwag the Declaration of Independence and to bring to you suitable exercises and suitable public addresses to keep alive the spirit of that Declaration (cheers). For the purpose, largely, as a lesson and an example to the youth, so that they may not forget at what cost and at what great sacrifice they are enjoying the liberties and the benefits and the blessings that flow from a great country like America." [Renewed cheering.]

But That Isn't All.

But material growth and wealth and power does not much impress him. He introduces that thought with one of his favorite "however's," saying:

"However, as I look back over the history of our country, I am not so much impressed by the growth and by power and by strength and by wealth. I am impressed by some other fact, and that is that with all the wealth, with all the growth and with all the power, from every line and every page of history, you never have the blush of shame that this country ever waged a war of aggression."

He closes patriotically.

"Now," he says, "I give you a chance to divert your minds to recreation, to which you are entitled after you have done your full duty in coming here and attending this meeting."

Then the band and the quartette, and the people, too, swing into "The Harp that Once Through Tara's Halls," and the "Red, White, and Blue," and "Rally 'Round the Flag," and "Yankee Doodle," and "America," and the "Star Spangled Banner," and they made the salute to the flag.

And I give you my word that when they did that, and when the flag on its eagle tipped staff was lifted before them by soldiers, it was a solemn moment.

And the reading of the Declaration by Supreme Court Justice Taft was like the reading of the gospel.

So, when you make up your mind that Tammany is all roughneck and plunder, maybe you are right, but I thought today that Tammany can do a beautiful thing in a very decorous and affecting way, and that maybe Tammany, too, has its ideals.

One thing sure I noticed, and that was that war tablets which commemorate valor and sacrifice adorn this structure from first floor to top. So, while the drums were throbbing out the old ballad, "Tammany," I came away feeling not nearly so self-righteous as when I entered.

Speaks to New Citizens.

Tonight, amid the profound canyons of skyscrapers encircling City Hall park, the governor is speaking at the civic reception to native born and naturalized citizens who are about to cast their first vote.

He is speaking amid music and radiant lights and he speaks from the heart. In the course of his plea that the humblest man before him will piously exercise the lofty privilege now conferred upon him, the governor releases this characteristic Alsmithism:

"In this country government cannot be handed down from the top. It's got to originate with the people themselves."

An in the morning at Tammany Hall, he avoids all partisan drift. His insistence is, "However you vote, vote," and he is withering in his references to "the man who goes off on a picnic election day or uses it as a sort of week end for entertainment."

He tells the new voters that they are "entering upon the highest privilege of all citizenship" because they are to "enjoy all of the privileges, all of the blessings, all of the benefits which the constitution confers."

But...

"But let us not for a moment be unmindful of the fact that citizenship carries with it a certain responsibility on the undisputed theory that you get nothing in this world for nothing (cheers). And when you get the privilege of citizenship with all of its guarantees under the constitution, you must be mindful of the weight of responsibility which in turn rests upon your shoulders. Let me be extremely practical in my talk about one of the great responsibilities. That is, the responsibility to cast your ballot."

Study of Both Parties.

"I believe every good citizen has another obligation, and that is the obligation to study the political doctrines of the great parties. Study the platform. Study the promises made, because, after all, the platform of a great political party is a declaration of political faith." (Cheers.)

He closes with a prayer, saying:

"I pray that God will bless all our new voters and make them good, loyal, staunch, faithful citizens of this great republic."

Rich engraved mementoes of the occasion were presented to the thousands of first voters by the citizens in charge of the reception.

HOOVER CHIEFS PICK NEW YORK FOR MAIN DRIVE

To Perfect Eastern Plans
Saturday.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., July 4.—(Special.)—Strong indications that the Republican party plans to stage one of the biggest campaign drives in the history of Gov. Smith of New York today when Secretary of Commerce Hoover announced that national committeemen from all the eastern seaboard states have been summoned to Washington for a conference Saturday.

At Hoover headquarters it was announced that a permanent eastern campaign organization will be worked out at this meeting and plans for conducting a vigorous offensive in behalf of the Hoover-Curtis ticket worked out by Secretary Hoover, Chairman Work, Senator Moses of New Hampshire, and other eastern Republican leaders will participate.

Washington interpreters the move as indicating that the nomination of Gov. Smith by the Democrats has convinced the Republicans that their greatest battle in behalf of the Hoover-Curtis combination must be waged in New York and nearby states.

Work Arrives Today.
Chairman Work will go into conference with Secretary Hoover as soon as he arrives in Washington tomorrow and special efforts will be made during the next three days to harmonize any differences in the Republican ranks and to perfect the nation-wide organization. Secretary Hoover expects James W. Good of Chicago to handle the western end of his campaign and is anxious that arrangements for conducting the battle in that section be worked out as speedily as possible.

Hoover headquarters flatly denied reports that Secretary Hoover had asked Senator Norris (Rep., Neb.) to become his running mate while the Kansas City convention was in progress.

"The story is silly and preposterous," George Akerson, private secretary to Mr. Hoover, said today when his attention was called to dispatches printed in Omaha stating that the Republican nominee had twice telephoned the radical Republican senator in an effort to persuade him to accept the vice presidential nomination.

True Story to Brookhart.

Mr. Akerson said that Secretary Hoover had maintained a consistent hands-off policy and had not made a move to aid any Republican secure the nomination for Vice President. It was pointed out that as several of Hoover's active supporters were vice presidential possibilities it would have been unwise for him to interfere.

Senator Norris had no comment to make today, but it was reported that Senator Brookhart (Rep., Ia.) was partly responsible for the story.

Mr. Hoover made it known today that he expects to go to the summer White House about mid-July and submit his resignation to President Coolidge. Should Mr. Coolidge ask him to remain in the cabinet for a few weeks longer, Mr. Hoover will probably do so.

VESSEL DRIFTING AT SEA IS RESCUED BY COAST GUARDS

Norfolk, Va., July 4.—(AP)—The coast guard cutter Carrabassett early today took in tow the American steamer Governor John Lind, which was drifting helplessly at sea with a broken shaft, 160 miles off Cape Hatteras. The coast guard craft is expected to make this port with the steamer tomorrow. The Governor John Lind of the Bull Steamship line, en route from Porto Rico to Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Norfolk, was rendered helpless when her shaft was broken last Thursday. Following failure by her crew to repair the machinery a call for help was wireless to the coast guard.

LEAGUE BODY ADOPTS GERMAN ANTI-WAR PACT

GENEVA, July 4.—(AP)—As the result of German initiative, a model treaty for strengthening the means of preventing war was adopted tonight by the league of nations committee on security and arbitration. The committee voted to send the results of its work to all governments in preparation for a general discussion at the September assembly of the league.

The assembly of the league will decide when and how further attempts will be made to bring about a general conference on the subject of reduction of armaments.

The essence of the so-called German treaty is that the nations will bind themselves in advance to accept the recommendations of the league council in the case of a threat of war and to refrain from measures likely to aggravate the dispute. Its object is the same as that of the proposed Kellogg pact—namely: the outlawry of war.

EITHER WOULD BE GOOD PRESIDENT, BARUCH ASSERTS

Prosperity Not Involved;
Will Support Smith.

New York, July 4.—(Special.)—Saying that economics had superseded politics in governmental matters, and asserting that business conditions in the United States would remain in their present prosperous state whichever candidate is elected, Bernard M. Baruch, who was head of the war industries board under President Wilson during the world war, said today before sailing for Europe on the United States liner Leviathan that he would gladly support Smith for President in the campaign.

"Without saying anything against Hoover, for whom I have the highest regard, I favor Smith for President. I favor him because he is an expert in government, is sound in matters of business, finance, and economics, and in addition to this is a man who is close to the American public," Mr. Baruch explained. "He is a man who can be admired for his great and sound human qualities."

Mr. Baruch reiterated his esteem for Mr. Hoover, whom he had known as a war worker, and said that "whoever wins, we will have a fine President," but he protested against Dr. Hubert Work's announcement that the Republicans would carry on their campaign on the basis of "the full dinner pail."

The Leviathan sailed on her sixth anniversary sailing since she was put into service as the flagship of the American merchant marine. She carried 2,300 passengers.

JUDGE THOMPSON RAPS G. O. P. IN ROODHOUSE TALK

Thousands Cheer Candidate in Home Town.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Roodhouse, Ill., July 4.—Cheered by the home folks of this village of his youth, supplemented by motor pilgrims from farms, towns and cities in seven counties, the speaking campaign of Justice Floyd E. Thompson, Democratic nominee for the governorship of Illinois, was opened here today with all the fervor of an old fashioned Fourth.

Despite the oppressive heat, scores of automobiles joined in the morning parade and several thousand listeners crowded the city park in the center of Roodhouse to hear "Our Boy" tell why he is running for governor and what he will do if he wins the office. And in their minds, apparently, there was no doubt of the victory.

Greene County Homecoming.

It was a combined homecoming for Greene county folks, a celebration of Independence day and a political rally with the enthusiasm, the sentiment, the energy of all three combining to defy a blistering sun.

The home folks picture was dramatized in the afternoon program by short talks from Justice Thompson's first teacher in a nearby district school, from a high school classmate, and from a man who was one of his pupils when he taught school in an adjacent village while studying law.

"The candidates for state office on the Republican ticket this year," he said, with what seemed to be a mixture of indignation and ironical laughter, "are identically—identically—the same persons—the same persons—who were on that ticket four years ago. The one exception is that Len Small is off the ticket and a member of his cabinet is on it."

This quotation was given importance because it was greeted more warmly than any other in the address.

Justice Thompson was presented by Circuit Judge Norman L. Jones, also a resident of Greene county, who four years ago, it is said, would have beaten Small except for the Coolidge landslide. He referred to the candidate as "Illinois' opportunity for redemption" and aroused widespread applause when he referred to the flouting of the farmers by the Republican national convention.

Enthusiasm for Smith.

He also brought in an evidence of the popularity of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York in downstate territory, a subject about which there has been considerable discussion.

"Senator Moses, the permanent chairman," he said, "challenged the Democrats to bring on their strongest candidate regardless of his name. I tell you now, Moses, that you will wish Pharaoh's daughter had left you in the bulrushes when that candidate sweeps across the country. His name is Al Smith."

The chief political part of Justice Thompson's address was the bombardment of the Emmerson-Stearns-Carlstrom ticket in its entirety.

"No attempt," he said, "has been made to answer the specific charges of unfaithfulness that I have made. My opponent merely says these charges are false."

"I ask him again which of the charges—which of the statements I have made is false."

Amals Emmerson Higgins.

"Is it not true that Louis L. Emmerson went to St. Louis in 1926 and bought with cash the support of Nat Goldstein and some others who had been elected delegates to the Republican national convention?"

"Is it not true that Louis L. Emmerson has collected millions of dollars in fees and taxes during his twelve years as secretary of state, that he withholds for months at a time without authority of law those vast sums of money and that he has not paid into the treasury one cent of interest earned on those funds?"

"Is it not true that his running mate, Fred E. Stearns, as state treasurer, loaned millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money to the meat packing companies of Chicago, through the phantom Grant Park bank, and failed to account for hundreds of thousands of dollars of interest earned on those funds?"

"Is it not true that Oscar E. Carlstrom as a candidate for attorney general in 1924 promised to diminish the suit brought by his predecessor against his (Carlstrom's) running mate and political sponsor, Len Small, to recover the people's money and then backed the courage to carry out his disgraceful promise?"

"Is it not true that Oscar E. Carlstrom added to the taxpayers' burdens by giving away millions of their

BOTH MAJOR PARTIES ARE TRICKING DRY, VICTOR BERGER SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 4.—[Special.]—Both major parties resorted to trickery and deception in framing the prohibition plank built into their 1928 campaign platforms, according to Representative Victor L. Berger (Sec. Wis.) whose analysis of the two pronouncements as well as of the Hoover and Smith presidential candidacies, was printed in the final issue of the Congressional Record yesterday.

Prohibition is merely "a red herring" drawn across the political stage to distract attention from other and more important issues, Berger asserted. The Republican party in spite of its platform pledge of strict law enforcement, has no intention of enforcing prohibition and the results, Berger warns, will be a continuation of the present ills "which defeat true temperance."

"Democratic politicians who intimate that a modification of the election of Smith are deliberately misleading the voters," he said.

"I am more convinced than ever that bone dry prohibition is not desirable, even if it were desirable, and not possible if it were desirable," asserted Berger.

Money in the settlement of the interest suit against Len Small, in failing to prosecute the interest suits against Fred E. Stearns and other state officers which have been pending for five years, in settling the Illinois Central Railroad company suit for several million dollars less than the amount established by his predecessor as due?

"When my opponent and his running mates answer these queries squarely and unequivocally they stand convicted of breach of trust."

Something of the same line of thought came into what he said about his plans if he is elected.

Makes Solomons Pledges.

"I pledge," he said, "to demand legislation providing a severe penalty for failure of the secretary of state and other officers who collect taxes and fees to deposit immediately in the state treasury those public funds collected from the taxpayers."

"I also shall demand legislation requiring a monthly report by the state treasurer of moneys received by him and of the terms and place of their deposit. We hold that a public officer has no more right to steal than a private individual."

Taking up what he said was the general recognition that our taxation system is defective and inefficient in administration, Justice Thompson added a pledge to devote special attention to legislation for a consolidation of taxing bodies in order to effect a more equitable distribution of the tax burden.

The speaker also devoted considerable attention to the subject of agriculture.

ROBINSON SLAPS CHURCH BIGOTRY IN LEGION SPEECH

Talk as Nominee Draws Arkansas Crowd.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Little Rock, Ark., July 4.—[Special.]—Senator Joseph T. Robinson sounded a plea for religious tolerance at an Independence day celebration here today in his first formal address, since he was nominated for Vice-President on the Democratic ticket.

The celebration was a statewide event under the auspices of the Little Rock and North Little Rock posts of the American Legion, given in honor of Arkansas' first nominee on a national political ticket.

In the morning Senator Robinson and Mrs. Robinson rode in a parade through the city, while the day's program was climaxed by Senator Robinson's address at the fair grounds in the afternoon.

Draws Statewide Crowd.

Crowds, gathered here from all over the state, heard the senator's ringing appeal for complete separation of church and state.

At first he reviewed the political history of the nation, the principles upon which were based the Declaration of Independence, the guarantees provided in the federal constitution, and then launched into a vigorous denunciation of bigotry and intolerance.

"The age of bigotry has passed," he declared, amid loud applause.

"The battalions that advance under the black banner of intolerance can never undermine or destroy the fortress of liberty."

"No man should be preferred or discriminated against in public authority because of his affiliation with a particular church."

"Religious Strife Futile."

"In great national emergencies our people do not waste their energies in fruitless controversies," he continued. "They do not question the religious sect with which the citizen is allied. They call upon him as a patriot to render service, and, thanks to the genius of our institutions, there has been no distinction or discrimination on account of sect."

In conclusion Senator Robinson said this country "stands for peace—peace at home, peace with all the peoples of the world," but added that "Permanent peace can never be brought about by mere treaties of arbitration and disarmament."

KLANSMEN ARM TO PROTECT HEFLIN; HE FAILS TO SHOW UP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 4.—[Special.]—Elaborate preparations were made by members of the Ku Klux Klan today to insure protection for Senator Thomas Hefflin of Alabama, who was scheduled to address a Klan meeting at Jamaica, but who failed to arrive or to notify the klansmen that he was not coming until after the time set for his appearance.

Early this morning an estimated crowd of 1,500 klansmen gathered in a forty acre field. Many of them were armed with pistols, clubs and sabers, which they said were for use in protecting the southern senator from persons who had sent many threatening letters.

Police said nothing could be done about the show of firearms as all those with guns were deputy sheriffs or had obtained permits to carry pistols from justices of the peace.

About 200 policemen waited at the edge of the field in case they should be needed. An emergency wagon also was on hand with riot guns and tear gas bombs.

The scheduled meeting time was taken up with various ceremonies and it was not until late afternoon that word was received that Senator Hefflin was in Toledo and had decided not to attend the meeting.

FLAWS FOUND IN REPORTS OF CITY OFFICIALS

Public reports of local governing bodies are criticized in "Governmental Reporting in Chicago," written by Herman C. Boyle, graduate student of the University of Chicago, and just published by the University of Chicago Press.

"The reporting system of the city of Chicago," the publication says, "is one that is spotted with good and bad practices, and it is one that presents little or no coordination. A few of the departments, like the health department, present reports that are both significant and effective; some, such as the eight year report of Mayor Thompson, published in 1923, present reports that are attractive, but not entirely reliable; some, the police department, for example, present reports that are neither attractive nor enlightening."

"A number of informal factors are found to influence the official reporting of the authorities, including the personal element, official inertia, and the desire to make official reports serve the purposes of personal publicity and of political campaigns in another factor of no little consequence."

BAR ALABAMA BOLTERS FROM PARTY PRIMARY

Selma, Ala., July 4.—(AP)—E. W. Pettus, chairman of the state Democratic committee, issued a warning today that any person who votes against the Democratic nominees in the November national election runs the risk of being barred from future Democratic primaries.

Qualifications for voters in the next statewide Democratic primary, which will be held in 1930 to nominate a governor and other state officers, will not be decided upon by the committee until after the presidential election this fall. Mr. Pettus stated that Democrats are expected to settle their differences in party caucus, convention or primary, and then to support the ticket, presenting an undivided front to the opposition.

The statement was regarded as the nature of a reply to those who had opposed Gov. Smith of New York at the Houston convention.

Northwest's Liberty Bell Rang Again at Vincennes

Vincennes, Ind., July 4.—[Special.]—The Liberty bell of the old northwest, in the tower of the Catholic cathedral, today again announced the independence of the United States to Vincennes. In 1778 the same bell was rung by order of Father Gibault to assemble the French of the old post here to take the oath of allegiance to the thirteen united colonies. The bell is well preserved.

Many women in my audience at whether my teeth are my own, it is probably natural to wonder whether a woman in her sixties has retained her teeth. Mine are my own and I'm proud of them. I have always been a great tooth brusher.

Now I am able to obtain all the necessary minerals in a tooth powder called Quinoid. The five-in-one dentifrice has a pleasant, mild taste, is an effective cleanser and polisher and, best of all, contains milk of magnesia, which I have had to use separately as a mouth wash. This combats the over-acidity, which are destructive to enamel.

Experts collaborated to produce Quinoid. Now you can get your local toilet counter. The price is 50 cents for a large tube.

FLYER BATTLES DEATH IN ARCTIC FIVE DAYS; WINS

Iceboat Expects to Reach
Noble Crew Today.

MOSCOW, July 4.—(U.P.)—The Soviet icebreaker, Babushkin, who on Friday left his base ship, the ice breaker Malin, in a search for stranded members of the Italian crew, returned to the Malin today after a harrowing five days' experience with wind and waves.

After leaving the Malin the week Babushkin encountered head winds, with which he struggled for some time, but which finally forced him to the sea eighty miles north of Hope Island, to the southeast of the Spitzbergen archipelago.

There his fragile sea plane was in constant danger of being crushed by the icebergs before it finally got off the water again and found the Malin. Both Babushkin and the crew of the plane escaped injury.

Rescue Report Unconfirmed.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oslo, Norway, July 4.—Rumors that the British yacht Albion had found Capt. Roald Amundsen, who has been missing since June 16, when he started in a French airplane, are unconfirmed and appeared to be without foundation today. Those aboard the Albion heard the story for the first time today from newspapers.

Rescue Ship Halted by Ice.

ROME, July 4.—(U.P.)—The Russian icebreaker Krasin, seeking to rescue the marooned members of the Italian crew from their floating refuge near Foy Island, again has been halted by huge masses of ice, says a message from the base ship, Circe di Milano.

Meanwhile, the ice on which the men are huddled is drifting westward, having reached tonight a position five miles west of the camp near Foy Island. The rescue vessel and the men it hopes to save are less than fifty miles apart. A new effort to pick up the six marooned men, this time by means of a light "moth" airplane, will be made from Esmarck Island, nine miles from their reported position, under the auspices of the Swedish expedition.

Finds No Trace.

ROME, July 4.—(U.P.)—Maj. Ravasi, Italian flyer, yesterday flew for one and one-half hours over the territory where it was thought Capt. Roald Amundsen and the crew of the Latham airplane might be down. He reported that there was no trace of the missing explorer.

Two Bond Jumpers.

Police last night were searching for Frank Rahn, 1400 North California avenue, and Paul Baker of River Grove, alleged gangster robbers, who forfeited bonds totaling $60,000 when they failed to appear in the Pekin jail court, June 27. Rahn's lawyer was a policeman attached to the Baltimore avenue station.

1. The Russian ice breaker, Krasin, today was expected to be within reach of the marooned crew of the dirigible Italia on Foy Island. Last night it had crashed its way to the vicinity of Cape Flaten, about 55 miles west of the stranded party's camp.

2. The Russian aviator, Babushkin, yesterday won a five day battle with storm and icebergs after having been forced down in the Arctic sea 80 miles north of Hope Island, while flying from the Russian ice breaker, Malin, to search for the Italia crew.

3. Report that Capt. Roald Amundsen was rescued by the English yacht Albion off South Cape is denied.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oslo, Norway, July 4.—Rumors that the British yacht Albion had found Capt. Roald Amundsen, who has been missing since June 16, when he started in a French airplane, are unconfirmed and appeared to be without foundation today. Those aboard the Albion heard the story for the first time today from newspapers.

PAPER CHARGES GEN. NOBILE MADE FOOL OF HIMSELF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
LONDON, July 4.—The Morning Post, quoting the Stockholm Dagbladet, publishes a startling story concerning Gen. Umberto Nobile's handling of the Italia flight.

It is stated that the start of the flight was carried out with the greatest disorder and that the petrol had to be pumped out of the tanks owing to wrong loading. The crew was detained a couple of hours, the Stockholm paper says, by religious ceremonies. Dr. Finn Malmgren, famous Swedish scientist, fuming with anger, was forced to search for his instruments, which had been strewn about the ship.

Gen. Nobile and his men, according to the Dagbladet, made public fools of themselves drinking champagne. The general asked one of the journalists to join him in a glass, and when he did so, Gen. Nobile said: "Cheerio, the press," and ran behind the crew to hide himself. The journalist threw the glass of champagne at the feet of the officers, who were all laughing at his discomfiture, with the exception of Maj. Mariani, who regarded Gen. Nobile's behavior with displeasure.

NEAR FORGOTTEN POLAR HEROES OF 1879 HONORED

New York, July 4.—[Special.]—Explorers who have followed the trail set out in the polar regions by Lieutenant Commander George W. DeLong forty-nine years ago, and who have written their names in history by explorations to new lands, joined today to commemorate the almost forgotten polar expedition of 1878-'81 in which Commander DeLong and most of his crew of thirty-three lost their lives.

A statue of the explorer of heroic size was unveiled at Woodlawn cemetery in the presence of the lost commander's widow and Herbert Wood Leach of Brockton, Mass., the only living survivor of the expedition.

Capt. Sir George Hubert Wilkins and Lieut. C. B. Eliassen, who flew across the top of the world, Vilhjalm Stefansson and Anthony Fiala, both noted explorers, participated in the ceremony.

League Wants Press to Let
John D. III. Alone in Job

GENEVA, July 4.—(U.P.)—League of nations officials today said that they were anxious to make the coming of John D. Rockefeller III. to hold a temporary job with the league information section entirely simple and natural. It was hoped that the press and the public would do nothing to embarrass the Princeton student in the fulfillment of his duties. It was added that his salary would be commensurate with his work and the general league scale. Temporary summer assistants generally receive $40 a week.

DEMOCRATIC FOREIGN POLICY.

We recall no better example in any party platform of pretentious insincerity, inconsistency, and futile phrase making than the Democratic plank on foreign policy. The Republican platform was bad enough.

We are told first that the Republican administration has no foreign policy. We are thereupon introduced to the following proposals:

- (a) Outlawry of war and an abhorrence of militarism, conquest and imperialism.

As to this, a treaty for outlawry of war has been formulated by the present Republican secretary of state with the support of the Republican President, and is being actively pressed upon the great powers. The rest of the paragraph means anything or nothing. We think the outlawry of war is mostly moonshine and will have chiefly a costly reaction upon our own defense policy, with no compensation in the policy or procedure of other great powers.

- (b) Freedom from entangling political alliances with foreign nations.

If this means anything it means repudiation of the league of nations, and, if the sense of the majority of the American people is regarded, it means the league court. But the platform begins with a tribute to the creator and chief protagonist of the league and an assertion that "his spirit moves on and his example and deeds will excite those who come after us as they have inspired us."

In view of the repudiating of his chief project, the spirit of Wilson might say of this tribute, "Thank you for nothing." If the laudation of Wilson in the platform and at the convention were worth a plugged nickel, it would pledge the party to the adoption of his covenant and our entrance into the league.

- (c) Protection of American lives and rights.
- (d) Noninterference with the elections or other internal affairs of any foreign nation.

This principle of noninterference extends to Mexico, Nicaragua, and all other Latin American nations. Interference in the purely internal affairs of Latin American countries must cease. Haiti seems to have been overlooked. Yet in Haiti we not only interfered in the purely internal affairs of that republic but smashed a rebellion, overawed a controlled election, virtually set up a government, supported it with arms, suppressed revolts, policed the country, remade its finances and established a continuing supervision of its internal and external affairs. And all that was done by a Democratic President, who is also the Woodrow Wilson whose inspiration, we are assured, inspires the makers of the Democratic policy. It was, in fact, an exceptional piece of common sense and practical statesmanship amidst a régime of costly weakness and inconsistency.

If the pledge to the protection of American lives and rights means anything, it means protection of American lives and rights in Mexico and Nicaragua and it means interference, if necessary, in the internal affairs of Latin American countries or those of any other country in which American lives and rights are imperiled.

The same facing-both-ways marks the other paragraphs of this plank, but it is not necessary to go through them here. We offer, however, as a prize sample of intellectual dishonesty and suppression of truth, the following:

- (k) We condemn the Republican administration for lack of statesmanship and efficiency in negotiating the 1921 treaty for the limitation of armaments, which limited only the construction of battleships and ships of over 10,000 tons. Merely a gesture towards peace, it accomplished no limitation of armaments, because it simply resulted in the destruction of our battleships and the blue prints of battleships of other nations; it placed no limitation upon construction of aircraft, submarines, cruisers, warships under 10,000 tons, poisonous gases, or other weapons of destruction. No agreement was ratified with regard to submarines and poisonous gases. The attempt of the President to remedy the failure of 1921 by the Geneva conference of 1925 was characterized by the same lack of statesmanship and efficiency and resulted in entire failure.

The authors of this paragraph evidently count upon a complete ignorance of the facts of the Washington conference on the part of the public, but we think they underestimate public intelligence. The efforts of the American delegates to induce the other powers to widen the scope of the treaty of limitations are well known. They were defeated by other delegations. The proposal to prohibit the use of poison gases at Geneva was made by the American delegation. It was successful but the treaty was not ratified by France. The renewed effort to limit cruiser construction at the disarmament conference called by the American government would doubtless have succeeded if managed by Democratic diplomats pledged to protect American rights by giving them up.

Republican foreign policy has been inconsistent and often inadequate to the defense and advancement of our national rights and interests. But to turn our foreign affairs over to Democratic Wilsonians would be jumping out of the frying pan into the fire.

GEN. SUMMERALL'S INITIATIVE.

The present chief of staff is fulfilling the expectations his career in France encouraged. Gen. Summerall is doing his best to keep our professional soldiers from lapsing into the inertia of peace times. He is compelling them to think and to act. He is testing as far as the means provided him permit new methods and new material.

How essential this is to national defense the average civilian, of course, does not realize. But the many civilian soldiers and especially the veterans who were in France know that the technique of modern war is growing ever more complicated and that modern physical science and modern mechanics are compelling great changes in tactics and organization. This new knowledge is, moreover, not static but is constantly changing, and it is of utmost importance that American military thought should be moving with it and contributing to it. If we are compelled to go to war on a modern scale the industrial, economic, and scientific resources of the nation must be drawn upon as quickly and efficiently as possible, and the military forces must be as well prepared as possible to make good use of them on the field of battle and in the field of the war.

Gen. Summerall also proposes, if possible, to have maneuvers on a scale which will give practice to the higher officers in the handling of considerable bodies of troops and this intention should be supported by public opinion. Congress may prove, as it usually does, penny wise and pound foolish, but the influence of civilian soldier opinion may induce more intelligent provision for this highly profitable and necessary training. Of course, at best, maneuvers must be in skeleton, but a deal of training in staff work can be given as planned by Gen. Summerall with officers of the regular army, National Guard, and reserve, employing the signal corps and some other necessary troops. No real concentration of troops is contemplated but the framework of operations will be created, with staff organization, posts and communications as if an enemy were in the field. Operations will be planned and carried out so far as the staff work is concerned.

To make this a part of the American system of preparedness is to increase our defense efficiency substantially. In the European war we were compelled to improvise a modern army administration and command. Fortunately, we were not fighting alone and had time to get something together. That we did as well as we did is creditable to American resourcefulness but we cannot afford not to do better in another war. Our unpreparedness sacrificed thousands of our own men and tens of thousands of our associates. In a war alone it might mean defeat. It certainly would mean waste of life and of military opportunity.

AFLOAT IN CHICAGOLAND.

A party of Boy Scouts from Chicago has completed a canoe trip down the Rock river from Rockford to Rock Island. The trip was sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and directed by Bob Becker, THE TRIBUNE'S outdoors man. Mr. Becker's notes of the trip, published from day to day in the sporting pages, suggest that the boys enjoyed the outing and are richer in health and self-reliance for having taken it.

The canoes followed one of the famous Indian highways of Illinois, a highway which later was used by the pioneers who opened the Illinois country for the white man. The boys camped on the old camp sites where possible. They return to Chicago with a sense of the romance of the Illinois country which cannot be obtained from books.

THE TRIBUNE sponsored the cruise in the belief that an account of it might bring residents of Chicagoland to a realization that they need not travel great distances to enjoy the out-of-doors. There is beauty of scenery, a rich history, and vigorous outdoor life to be had close at hand. The Rock is not the only river which might have been followed. The Fox this summer is high enough to tempt the canoeist. The Des Plaines, the Kankakee, and the Illinois are beautiful and historic. Vacations can be spent on these streams which will yield a return fully as large as the costlier vacations spent far from home.

Editorial of the Day

THE NEW LEADER OF THE DEMOCRACY.

(New York World.)

In the nomination of Gov. Smith the Democratic party is making its third serious attempt since the Civil war to transform itself from an asylum for lost and discredited causes into a responsible and liberal instrumentality of government. For its devotion to the cause of slavery the party was prostrated for twenty-four years until at last in Grover Cleveland it found a leader whom the country was ready to trust. But hardly had the party recovered from its association with the cause of slavery when it was plunged into new disorders by the rise of Bryan and its adherence to populism and free silver. For sixteen years more the party was prostrated, until, owing to the disavowal of Bryan and the rise of a new leader in Woodrow Wilson, the party again demonstrated that it was fit to govern. In 1920 the party was swept out of power by the inevitable reaction against the war. For eight years the party has been distracted and divided, unable to gather itself together because the same elements within it which had committed it first to slavery, then to populism, had found a new idol to worship in prohibition and all the intolerance that is associated with it. We are witnessing now the attempt of the Democracy to do again in 1928 under Alfred E. Smith what it did in 1912 under Grover Cleveland and in 1912 under Woodrow Wilson.

Three bad causes have three times wrecked the party in the last seventy years; slavery, populism and prohibition. Three leaders have fought to save the party: Cleveland, Wilson and Smith. We do not question the sincerity and we appreciate the gallantry of those who have fought for these lost causes. The cause of human slavery was one of the worst causes that men ever embraced. There were noble men who embraced it. The cause of populism was defended by leaders whose sincerity and devotion no man can question. The cause of prohibition is sponsored by men who earnestly believe that they are the spokesmen of the Lord. But in so far as the Democratic party has followed such causes it has followed them to disunion and defeat. The judgment of history has been delivered upon them. They are the losing causes of hopelessly dwindling minorities. They are the temporary aberrations of the popular mind, rejected in the end by the sober second thought of the people.

NOT HIS JOB.

HEALTH CONTESTS ARE IMPROVING CHILDREN.

IN Cook county, Illinois, they have an annual contest among the school children for health prizes. First, there is a series of contests in the different districts of the county to select a girl and a boy in each as the district champions. Then these are pitted against each other for the two grand sweepstakes prizes. The two prizes are provided by the county board. The contest is under the direction of County Superintendent of Schools Tobin and County Health Director Wright. The basis of scoring is the yearly record of health habits of each child in the schools, as made by the school nurse, with the assistance of the teachers. The children having good records were examined by city health department physicians and dentists. Finally, the championship group went before a final board, made up of the county health records made in the school during the year, and the results of examinations made by the doctors and dentists. The final board selects two—one girl and one boy—as the grand champions.

I have served on this board for several years and have some observations based on what I have seen there. One is that in young people of that age group—11 to 15—are better physically and mentally than boys. Since, at that age, the girls are nearly through their period of preadolescent rapid growth and boys are just entering theirs, we expect girls of a given age to be larger than boys. But it is a period of rapid growth. Therefore, by the same token, we expect girls to be uneven. That was not found to be the case. Boys were much more lopsided, lumpy and uneven. The girls have always had much the better teeth and fewer of them have enlarged glands. Enlargement of the thyroid was not a factor in those who came to the final test, either boys or girls.

All of both groups are vaccinated against smallpox, but not many of them against diphtheria. As matters now stand, if vaccination against diphtheria and typhoid were conditions, not many could meet the requirements. As the years go on the qualifications of the contestants improve. Some of this is due to the fact that the conditions are better known. From the beginning of the school year the contest is discussed and the children try to keep their health scores good. However, a good part of the improvement is due to general improvement in the average child hereabouts. They know better what health habits are and they are more disposed to follow them. They are better protected against preventable disease.

CAUTERIZE THE ULCER.

L. F. T. writes: There is only one thing I haven't tried for ulcers in the mouth, and that is cauterizing. Will you please tell me the effect of this process and how to do it and what with?

I have been dieting along scientific lines under the direction of an expert, and still the ulcers keep coming back, sometimes singly, sometimes in pairs and sometimes in herds. Most of them appear underneath the tongue. There is nothing wrong with me otherwise, that is, with respect to general health. Pulse and heart are O. K.; blood pure; habits regular. I've been working nearly a year to find the seat of the disturbance but have been unsuccessful. What I want now is to get rid of the ulcers permanently and get a small measure of relief in that way. Any old port in a storm.

REPLY. Mild cauterization will give you relief quicker and better than any other treatment. Wash little cotton swabs in hot water. Soak this in aromatic sulphuric acid. Use this to cauterize with. Assuming yours is not a case of chronic ulcer, it will go away out. Continue experimenting with your diet.

I am sorry you regard me as a disagreeable person to be sought as a last resort, but at that you flatter me. In comparison with some, the last sentence of your letter is Chesterfieldian.

Chicago, July 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Have a tax bill for the opening of Kimball avenue at Diversey boulevard. Due June 30, 1928. I would appreciate advice as to why this bill is not paid before any work has been done on this project.

R. J. E.
The assessment for opening Kimball avenue, between Diversey and Wellington, is due and payable this year under warrant No. 52724. This assessment must be collected in order that we can pay for property to be taken up damaged. When all the assessments have been collected, and all the awards paid, we can get order of court and take possession.

DOZEN

POLICE SLAYER IS GROWING OLD IN COUNTY JAIL

There Over Two Years;
Awaits Appeal Verdict.

William J. (Three Fingers Jack) White, police killer and bank robber, is about the oldest prisoner in point of occupancy in the crowded Cook county jail. This was announced yesterday by Warden Edward J. Fogarty. White was convicted by a Criminal court jury more than two years ago and the Supreme court has been cogitating for more than a year over what to do with his case.

If the judgment of the Criminal court is not overturned when a decision is rendered by the Supreme court White will have to serve a life term in Joliet penitentiary, from which he was released on parole in 1924. He was the recipient of a special discharge on his parole the following year.

Two Killed in Battle.
White was convicted of murdering Policeman Ed Pfau on Dec. 13, 1925, when an attempt was made to arrest him because he had in his possession an automobile on which the license numbers had been changed.

White, James Johnston and two women companions were in the Mannheim tavern near River Forest when the police noticed the automobile in front. The car answered the description of one used in some robberies. The two former convicts answered with bullets when the police stepped in to question them and Policeman Pfau was killed and Policeman James McBride's head was grazed. McBride mortally wounded Johnston.

Implicated in Robberies.
White has been charged by the police with having been implicated in the McHenry bank robbery, the International pay roll robbery and the Bremen State bank robbery.

In the trial of the murder case Judge Phillip L. Sullivan instituted a new method of jury selection. He himself qualified the jurors as to the death penalty and other topics on which venemen usually disqualify themselves. It is because of this point that the Criminal court attaches have waited in vain so far for a higher decision in the case.

$250,000 ROAD PIONEER'S GIFT TO BOYHOOD HOME

St. Madison, Ia., July 4.—[Special.]—An old man's memorial to his boyhood home, officially was turned over to the public today, when ten miles of paved road, built at a cost of more than $250,000 by Alexander Coleman, 89, was officially opened.

The road extends from Hillsboro, Ia., past the farm where Coleman spent his boyhood, and later will connect with federal highway 181. Muddy roads kept hundreds from the celebration.

A parade over the road, a free barbecue lunch at noon and an address by State Senator J. R. Frailey, were features of the celebration.

Coleman's father settled on the farm in 1855. Alexander helped to hew the original road out of the virgin forest. Coleman is a bachelor.

CITY STRIPPED OF POWER OVER 'L' ATTORNEYS' VIEW

Court Ruling Called Door to Perpetual Franchise.

confers upon the Commerce commission, formerly the Public Utilities commission, general supervision of all public utilities. It cannot be said to be the intention of the legislature that both the city and the Commerce commission shall have jurisdiction of this matter. Where the general assembly enacts a new statute upon any subject and it appears from the new act that it is the legislative intention to make a revision of the whole subject and to frame a new plan or scheme in relation thereto, this is, in effect, a legislative declaration that whatever is embraced in the new statute shall prevail and whatever is excluded therefrom shall be discarded.

Logic Applied to Franchise.
Commenting on this paragraph, Mr. Busch said:

"Apply the same logic to a test on the validity of the franchisees themselves and it is apparent that it leads to the same conclusion—that the Commerce commission supersedes the city. If the commission can overrule the franchise terms in part, why not in full? Although this opinion does not deal directly with track expansions and additions, it certainly forms a basis for another suit that would give the commission authority over these matters, too."

Mr. Doty described the latest decision as "the climax of a series of cases all tending to strip away the powers of the city." He cited the decision in the Chicago Motor Coach company case, handed down simultaneously with the North Shore case, as a companion opinion. This decision retold the city's right to keep busses off the streets when they have a permit from the Commerce commission to operate.

Etzelson Office Blamed.
The Dever administration attorneys, in particular Mr. Busch, were emphatic in their denunciation of the present corporation counsel's office under Samuel A. Etzelson, who they said had made a blunder that defeated the city before Mayor Dever came into office. In 1919, when the Commerce commission approved a lease whereby the North Shore line cars operated on the elevated tracks south to Irving Park boulevard, Etzelson not only failed to object but acquiesced, Mr. Busch declared.

He cited that part of the decision which says: "It (the court) found that the city of Chicago had been notified of the hearing and appeared by its attorneys and offered no objection but stated that on investigation of the lease it could find nothing objectionable to the interests of the public or the city in the terms and provisions thereof and consented to and approved the execution of the lease and operating agreements."

Upon taking office, Mr. Busch said, he saw the mistake and in his injunction petition called attention to the fact that Mr. Etzelson acted—or failed to act—without authority of the city council. On this point, the court said:

"Whether the city is bound by the consent of its counsel to the order of the commission is of no consequence here. It is admitted that it had notice and appeared at the hearing. . . . The city had a right to review the decision of the commission by appeal to the courts. Its remedy was complete had it seen fit to follow it. It took no appeal and sought no review . . . and therefore that order becomes final and binding on the city."

"In other words, we were beaten before we started," declared Mr. Busch. "If any one is to blame for the city's predicament now, it is the present corporation counsel or his assistants."

History of Case Reviewed.
The entire history of the case as handled under the two corporation counsels is reviewed in the Supreme court decision, a document of seven-teen typewritten pages. It was delivered by Justice Clyde E. Stone.

After the review and disposal of the contention of the city, the opinion holds that the North Shore line has developed a large passenger business into and out of the city and that "the service has been a great convenience to the traveling public and to the people of the state and the city of Chicago, as well as the intervening municipalities between Chicago and Milwaukee."

The decision states further that the North Shore company since 1919 has spent in excess of $3,000,000 for equipment and improvement of its service, and is now constructing the Niles Center branch at an estimated expense of more than $4,000,000. During 1924 the line carried 2,843,021 passengers into and out of the city, and during the first six months of 1925, 1,354,833 passengers, it is pointed out.

In conclusion the opinion again alludes to the city's failure to appeal the 1919 permit on the original North Shore Rapid Transit lease.

NEED FOR STATE POLICE FORCE IS SHOWN IN SURVEY

Plan Given to Overcome
Labor's Opposition.

A state police organization under a single administrative head is advocated in a report issued yesterday by the Illinois Association for the Administration of Criminal Justice and the Chicago crime commission. The association in conjunction with the crime commission has carried on a survey over several months of police conditions in the rural districts.

Existing opposition of union labor would be practically eliminated, the report suggests, by confining the work of a state police force to activities in labor disputes to only such cases as where actual violence occurs.

Rural crime in Illinois demands the establishment of an adequate system of police protection, says the report prepared by Bruce Smith of the National Institute of Public Administration.

Cities Use of Troops.

Records showing that Illinois National Guard contingents had been called to 17 cities to do riot duty within 14 years, and other disclosures lead to the following conclusion, the report says:

"Adequate protection for the rural districts will require a trained and mobile force of state police, operating under a single administrative head who should be responsible to the governor alone."

Opposition of Labor.

The opposition of labor to such an organization was recognized in the report as follows:

"Illinois may profit from the experience of other states setting up safeguards surrounding the use of state police in riot duty. Attention is directed especially to the Massachusetts provision requiring that the police shall not be used or called upon for service in any industrial dispute unless actual violence has occurred, wherein, and then only by the governor. It is believed that this provision represents the full effective limit to any such restriction."

"For the fact may as well be recognized that while a police force requires careful provision for its democratic control, the means employed to that end should be concerned with the organization of the force and discipline of its personnel from top to bottom, rather than with arbitrary limitations upon its powers as a peace maintaining agency."

Increase in Homicides.

The report says that from 1922 to 1924, inclusive, the homicide rate in rural Illinois was almost 25 per cent higher than in rural portions of other states.

"It is clear that the sheriffs in Illinois are not and probably never will be as adequate police force," Smith says in the report.

FLYING COUNTRY CLUBS, A LA GOLF PLAN, PROPOSED

New York, July 4.—(Special.)—Formation of flying country clubs, somewhat on the golf club plan, under the direction of a central organization, will be launched tomorrow with the opening of the offices of the Aviation Country Clubs, Inc.

Fairchild, president of the Fairchild Aviation corporation; Robert W. Law Jr.; George Post, president of Free Bottom Craft; Earl Osborne, publisher of Aviation; and James H. Taylor, vice president of Air Associates, Inc.

Miss Ruth Rowland Nichols of Rye, a junior league member, who last January flew a Fairchild seaplane without a stop from New York to Miami, Darwin, J. Adams, and John H. Reeves are members of the organization committee. The first three clubs to be established will be in Westchester, Long Island, and New Jersey.

RAISE BOND FUND TO HELP INDICTED POLL TERRORISTS

Underworld Collects Fee
from Gambling Dens.

Ball bonds, taking property running up into the millions to cover necessary schedules, come high and, according to information submitted yesterday to Special Attorney General David D. Stansbury, in temporary charge of the special grand jury investigation into election frauds and terrorism, an assessment is being levied on "valley" gambling joint owners to meet the expenses.

Sheridan A. Bruseaux, in charge of the investigation of the murder of Octavius R. Granady, colored opponent of Morris Eller for the committee membership of the bloody 20th ward, reported that investigators have discovered that an original $35,000 fund has not been sufficient to cover the preliminary expenses. An additional assessment of $20,000 has been ordered and is now being collected.

Pay 10 Per Cent of Bond.

The bonds for those indicted so far in the quiz has called for the scheduling of over $1,000,000 worth of property. Much more is necessary before bonds are given for those still at large. The usual professional bondsman fee is 10 per cent of the amount of the bond.

Capt. John Stages and his special investigators vainly searched race tracks and other amusement places yesterday for the missing poll terrorists named in the indictments. During the course of his work Stages, who is expected to be deputized today by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court, found that Harry Hochstein, a lieutenant in the Eller organization, has openly flaunted the police. Hochstein is reported to have been in the city all the time.

Fugitives to Be Called.

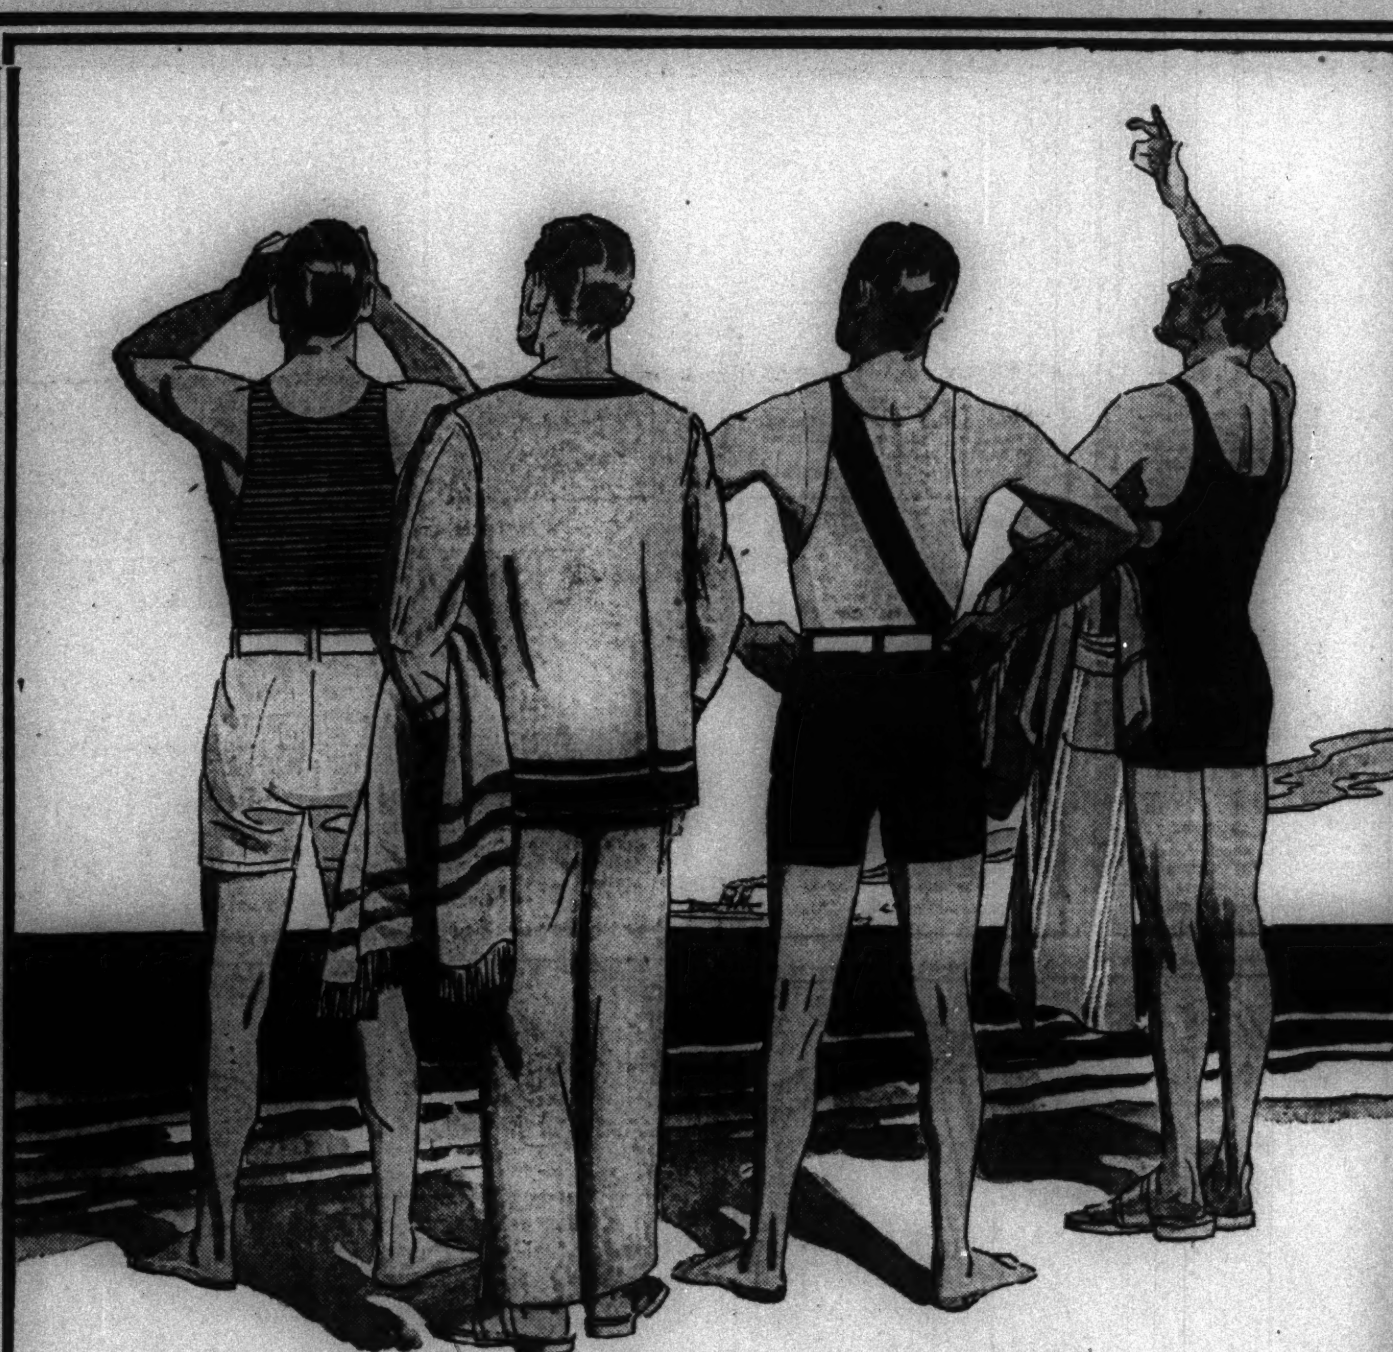

Prosecutor Stansbury spent the holiday marshaling together evidence of vote frauds for presentation to the new grand jury next week. He said that in precincts where it was evident the policemen on watch had turned their backs while ballot theft was in progress those policemen will be called to explain to the grand jury. The prosecutor announced that today he would seek warrants for the fugitives and would ask that Capt. Stages be authorized as the peace officer to serve the documents.

Two of the alleged murderers of Granady, Johnny Armondo and Sammy Kaplan, spent an unpleasant day in crowded and hot cells at the county jail complaining of their forced association with cellmates.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, July 4.—The Bremen airman this morning visited the government buildings to greet officially the ministers of President William Cosgrave.

The airman was received at the vice royal lodge by Gov. Gen. and Mrs. James MacNeill and afterward lunched with the German consul general, Herr von Degen.

A garden party for Independence day was given by American Minister Sterling in Phoenix park. Later they dined at a special mess dinner of officers of the Irish army, Defense Minister Desmond Fitzgerald presiding. Afterward they attended a reception given by President Cosgrave at the Metropole hotel.

GROOM IS FOUND DEAD; BRIDE AND BROTHER HELD

Port Smith, Ark., July 4.—(AP)—A bride and her brother are being held today for investigation in connection with the death of a man identified as her husband, whose body was found in Frog bayou, Crawford county, Sunday. Another brother is sought.

Mrs. Birdie Cooper Adams Clayton was arrested following identification of the body as that of her husband, W. G. Clayton of Tulsa, Okla. Her brother, Hugh Cooper of Rudy, Ark., previously had been arrested, and officers said they also were seeking Russell Cooper, another brother.

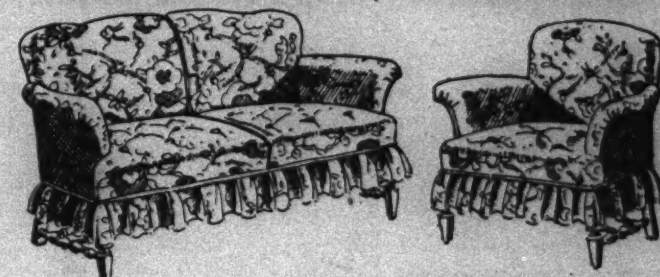

R. S. Wilson, prosecuting attorney of Crawford county, said he would file murder charges in connection with the man's death.

IOWA FUGITIVE ARRESTED HERE.

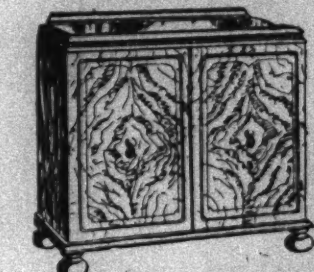

Joseph Jackson, 36, wanted in Des Moines, Ia., for violation of the prohibition law and for interstate transportation of stolen automobiles, was arrested by Sergt. Joseph Sullivan and Henry Carr yesterday.

The Reason Why

—we are able to hold this great sale. Factories, like stores, take inventory, but rather than inventory small lots, or short lines of big lots of merchandise, they are willing to turn them into cash at a big financial sacrifice. Weeks ago we sent our buyers into the markets to purchase the best of these factory bargains for you. They bought big lots, small lots, odds and ends, in fact many items were purchased at prices that permit us to sell them as low as 50c on the dollar. In addition to the thousands of items specially purchased for this sale, we have added hundreds of items from our own stock at greatly reduced prices. Some of the best bargains are in limited quantities.

MOTORIZING OF 34TH INFANTRY GETS UNDER WAY

Guns to Fire from Chassis of Fast Motor Cars.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., July 4.—[Special.]—The task of motorizing the thirty-fourth infantry, the first "motorized" regiment to be placed in the line, is now under way. The task is to design the new equipment to make it possible for the war department to have the regiment fully equipped before the first of next year. The last congress set aside $140,000 for the purpose of motorizing this regiment as an experimental move.

Fast Carriers Urged.
Maj. Ralph E. Jones discusses this subject in an article printed in this month's Infantry Journal. He suggests the following vehicles should be carefully investigated by army officials:
Very fast armored motor cars and light armored vehicles.
Fast tanks, light or medium weight, and fast cargo carriers for these tanks.
Fast mortars or howitzers.
Fast carriers for special infantry troops.
Cross-country motor cars.
Ordinary motor cars and motor cycles.
Cargo trucks.
Fast cargo vehicles.
Cross-country cargo vehicles.
In addition to these types, Maj. Jones suggests that the possibilities of motorized transportation, motorized machine guns, motorized command posts, and motorized signal equipment be studied.

Kemal Sends First Turkish Wire in Latin Characters
[Copyright 1923, By the New York Times.]
CONSTANTINOPLE, July 4.—President Kemal employed Latin characters in a Turkish telegram sent yesterday from here to Ankara summoning Prime Minister Ismet Pasha to a conference. This telegram, the first Turkish message in Latin characters, makes history. A commission is now working over the adaptation of Latin characters and newspapers are printing daily lessons in phonetic to prepare their readers.

ROME, July 4.—[AP.]—Gen. Armando, chief of the general staff of aeronautics, and two noncommissioned officers, Lazzarini and Egidi, were severely burned last night when their airplane overturned and caught fire at Nettuno airdrome. The general received numerous burns on his face, hands and knees.

Policeman Kills Their Comrade

YOUTHS TO TELL HOW POLICEMAN SLEW THEIR PAL

Stealing Tires for Holiday
Trip, They Admit.

Charles Weiss and Charles Nottbohm, 18 year old sons of well to do parents, will today face a coroner's jury to tell how their companion, Charles Scherer, was slain by a policeman's bullet early yesterday as the three fled after they had been caught stealing automobile tires.

The two boys were held in the Hyde Park police station yesterday. They mourned the death of their chum and told detectives they hadn't meant to steal. They had wanted to spend the holiday in Michigan, they said, and they feared that the tires of Weiss' automobile would not stand the trip.

Weiss' mother and stepfather, who live at 8533 South Park avenue, came to the police station yesterday but were refused permission to see Charles. "I can't understand why the boys did it," Mrs. Weiss said, brushing the tears from her eyes. "I gave Charles the automobile, and he hadn't time to try to steal tires for it."

Charles Nottbohm, father of one of the boys and a wealthy realty dealer, also called at the station but did not see his son. He, too, was saddened by the affair.

"Charles' mother had refused him permission to spend the Fourth in Michigan," he said. "Shortly before the conclusion of school this spring, he said he had learned all that could be taught; so he quit school against our wishes."

John F. Scherer, father of the dead boy, is ill at the home, 8037 Oglesby avenue, and other members of the family refused to make any statement.

80 Warships, Flower of French Navy, in Big Parade

HAVRE, France, July 4.—[AP.]—Eighty warships, the flower of France's reorganized fleet of half a million tons, were anchored in a double file extending six miles Tuesday for a presidential review. President Doumergue came here to inspect the ships and naval seaplanes and to witness the sham battle at night by an illuminated fleet.

GIVE THEM A CHANCE TO REST

WHEN you sleep are your eyes relaxed, or do they go on fighting the day's battles over again? Tired muscles, beginning to sag into faint crow's feet, mean eyes that need rest. Try this treatment of a famous beauty specialist. Tonight, just before going to bed, bathe your eyes with Iris. Then saturate a cloth or absorbent cotton, place on your closed eyelids, and relax for a few minutes.

The cooling, healing lotion will make your eyes feel deliciously fresh and rested, while the gentle astringent gradually strengthens and tightens tired tissues, softly ironing out the telltale lines.

Follow in the morning with an Iris eye bath and a dash of cold water and your eyes will be bright and sparkling for another day.

Any druggist will tell you that Iris is so much better than the time honored bath of plain boric acid because Iris contains eight other ingredients that have met the approval of the medical profession.

For the sake of your appearance and for eyes that will attract comment because of their brightness, try Iris for only ten days. You'll notice a big difference.

Iris comes complete with eye cup in 50c and $1 sizes.

That's about what the food bill is when the moths eat your husband's winter clothes! And it's moths that do all the damage—flying moths can't eat. Insect-killers, moth-balls, tar-bags and cedar chests won't stop moths from eating. But Larvex will, because it mothproofs the cloth itself. Guaranteed by Good Housekeeping Magazine. Absolutely odorless. Comes in two forms. SPRAYING LARVEX for clothes, furniture, etc. Costs as little as pressing—enough to thoroughly mothproof two suits, only $1. Simply spray on and it mothproofs for an entire year. RINSING LARVEX for all washable woollens—blankets, sweaters, baby garments, etc. Easy as rinsing! Dissolve in water—soak woollens—and they're mothproofed until washed again. A $1 package mothproofs all the washable woollens of the average family. Sold by drug and department stores. Spraying Larvex; pints, $1—with special atomizer, $1.50. 1/2 gallons, $3. Gallons, $5. Rinsing Larvex, $1. The Larvex Corporation, 250 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y.

The Spinster Market

holds few profits

THE census shows that there are a number of ladies in the country who are unencumbered by such a thing as a family. It also shows a corresponding number of gentlemen whose only address is a club.

But few national advertisers would consider bachelors and spinster ladies to be important markets. And fewer still would consciously direct their advertising to those two groups. Yet that is exactly what happens when the advertiser fails to recognize these two facts—first, that the family is the real seat of buying power in America; second, that no one can be a member of a family without being influenced in his purchases by the other members of the family.

The first of those facts is obvious at a glance. The second is equally obvious if you stop to think how things are bought in your own home. Whether it's a new breakfast food or a new car—everyone in the family has an opinion. And it takes a majority vote of the family to decide which product is selected.

That is why the most alert advertisers today are primarily interested in publications which are read by two or more members of the family. Judged by that standard The American Magazine leads all others. For, in every test of which we have record, The American Magazine is overwhelmingly first in its combined reading by all the family.

The American Magazine's all-family appeal has earned for it a place of prominence in the plans of such notable advertisers as—The Laundry-owners' National Association, Chrysler Sales Corp., The Lowe Brothers Company, The Davey Tree Expert Company, Inc., Stephen F. Whitman & Son, Inc., Standard Sanitary Mfg. Company.

If you want to reach, at one advertising cost, the entire family circle in 2,200,000 American homes you can do it by using The American Magazine.

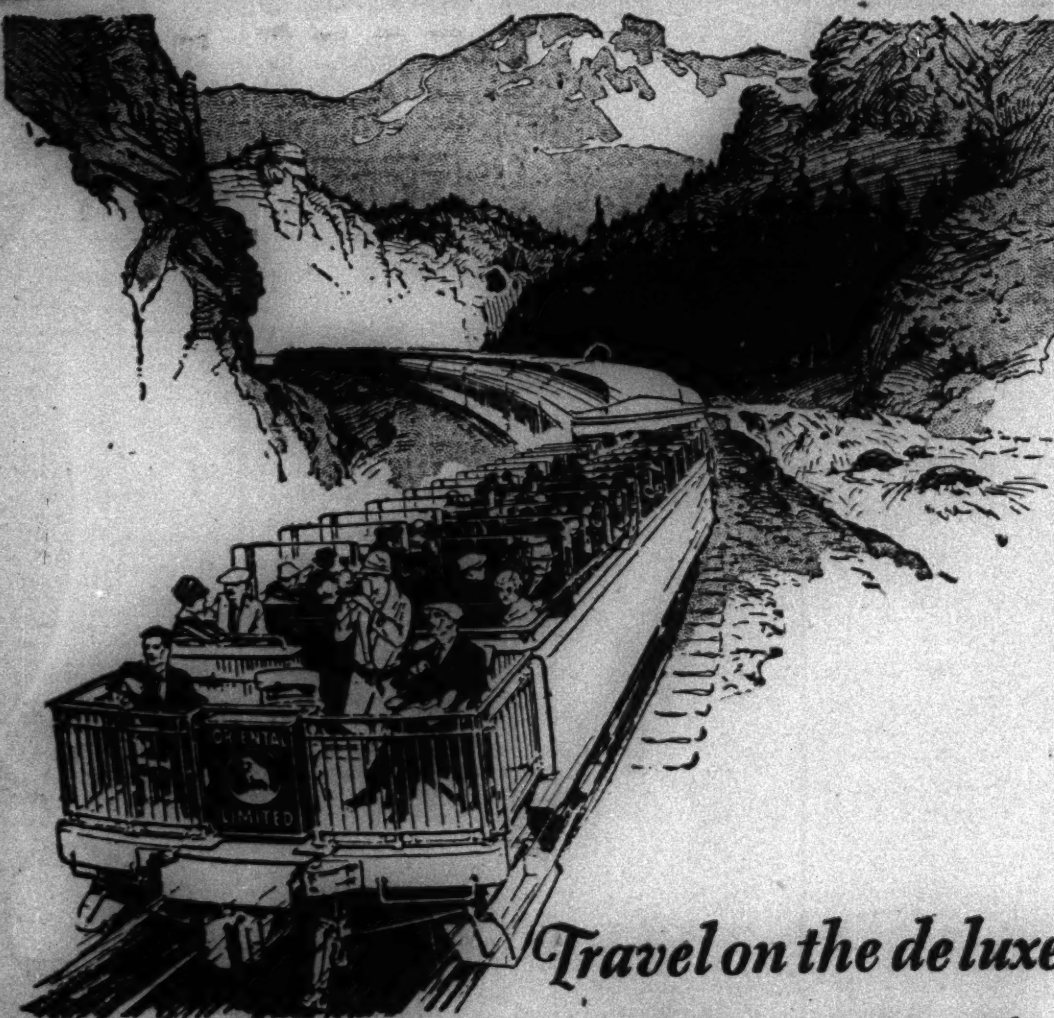

They buy as they read

The reading habits of the American family have recently been investigated by some of our most important national advertisers, by publishers, and by six leading universities. In every case these surveys disclose The American Magazine to be overwhelmingly first in its combined reading by all the family. And in several The American Magazine averaged from 3.6 to 3.9 readers per family.

That fact is significant. For the buying habits of the average family closely parallel its reading habits—numerous surveys proving that two-thirds of all family purchases are influenced by two or more members of the family.

The economy of using The American Magazine with its all-family appeal is therefore obvious.

MEXICO TO OPEN DOOR TO FOREIGN GOLD AND BRAINS

Calles Will Back Bill to End Isolation.

BY JOHN CORNYN.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
MEXICO CITY, July 4.—In an effort to rehabilitate the Mexican national finances through encouragement of foreign immigration and capital, President Calles today accepted in principle, a bill prepared by Foreign Minister Genaro Estrada. President-Elect Alvarez Obregon also advocates the new measure.

The bill will be presented to representatives of every department in the Calles cabinet at a meeting to which prominent lawyers will be invited. The proposed laws aim to throw overboard most of the disabilities of foreigners and foreign capital.

"The Mexican government should have one billion pesos [five hundred million dollars] income instead of about one-third of that amount as now," said a member of the commission which will consider the reconstruction of the laws governing foreigners and foreign capital in Mexico.

Seeks Bill for Irrigation.

"Foreign capital will not enter Mexico unless it is encouraged, but the present constitution and laws discourage it. On the Pacific coast of Mexico alone exist from two to three times as much water as is needed for the irrigation of fourteen river valleys, each as extensive as the Imperial Valley of California. It would require more than a billion dollars to furnish irrigation facilities for the valleys, but antiquated laws keep foreign capital out and the richest lands of Mexico are practically desert.

"Mexico needs a vast system of highways and harbors, and exploitation of petroleum, coal and minerals, and its agricultural land. It needs 1,600 miles of railways and aviation routes, and now is seeking capital for this work.

"The reaction against radical theories of isolation of Mexico from other nations and the self-sufficiency of the Mexican nation is dead and a new feeling of national unity has taken their place."

Act on Morrow's Advice.

Interviews of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow with President Calles and Señor Estrada, and the studies of American experts attached to the American embassy on international conditions and necessities have influenced, and will undoubtedly continue to influence, the reconstruction of the laws affecting foreigners, said another member of the government.

Clauses regarding foreigners in the constitutions of 1857 and 1917 will have to be practically wiped out to encourage immigration into Mexico and foreign capital, according to the same authority.

MARSEILLES MOB THREATENS LIFE OF "BLUEBEARD"

Marseilles, France, July 4.—(AP)—A Marseilles mob tried to lynch France's newest "Bluebeard," Jerome Pratt, alias Pierre Rey, when he landed here today from the Alps by boat.

Police had taken their prisoner, who is charged with the strangling of three women and connected with the disappearance of 15 others, from the boat at Chateau d'If. His identity became known and it was all the police could do to escort him safely to a cell at the courthouse. Pratt only smiled while police cracked many heads in their effort to save his life.

Today's demonstration is seen as the result of published reports that Pratt may escape the guillotine inasmuch as French law decrees no one over the age of 60 may be so executed. A similar law will prevent his being transported to the Devil's Island prison. So, if convicted, he probably will spend the remaining years of his life in a relatively comfortable French jail cell.

MICHIGAN CITIES BUILDING ROADS FOR FAR FUTURE

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Detroit, Mich., July 4.—[Special.]—For the purpose of demonstrating certain features of wide highways, Edward N. Hines, for the last twenty-two years master builder of Wayne county's hard roads, plotted a party of visitors about his ballfield today. The trip finally expanded to 183 miles by the speedometer and it required nearly four hours to make it.

In the journey not more than twenty-five miles of narrow road were traveled, and that accounted for the failure to maintain a speed of 50 miles an hour. The rest of the journey was over roads forty feet or more in width.

One of the narrow roads traversed was Huron River drive.

"This is the last piece of 18 foot road in Wayne county," he said. "We built it in 1918."

Two Lane Highways Passed.

"The day of two lane highways is past and the narrow road of primitive motoring days is dead so far as the motor traffic areas go," Mr. Hines continued. "Building 20 foot concrete roads for highway purposes is the height of extravagance and waste where highways are expected to carry modern traffic."

"It is a fact that a narrow road will go to pieces under traffic which, tripled, would not show the slightest effect upon forty foot or wider roads. On the wider roads overloads do not fatigue the surface and body of the paving. On narrow roads the overloads, which prevail in modern traffic, keep pounding at the same lines so continuously that the construction gives way."

"We have to recognize the overloads—the buses, trucks, vans and other heavy vehicles. But they are too heavy for narrow roads, so we build wider ones. It is folly to build roads which require load limitations. It means simply that the twenty foot roads will have to be rebuilt. If 40 foot or wider roads are provided the heaviest traffic may run over them indefinitely without injuring them."

Can Triple the Traffic.

"Kindred conclusions have been reached with regard to speed and traffic. Forty foot roads will carry more than triple the traffic which can use a 20 foot road, besides increasing the speed materially and at the same time making fast driving safer."

Mr. Hines then demonstrated, by a ten mile drive over a 40 foot roadway, that sixty miles an hour was a conventional gait and quite as safe, all things considered, as 30 or 35 miles an hour on a pavement half the width. It is the opinion of Mr. Hines that the regulation 40 foot road in one piece is only a temporary standard for service motorways. He believes that all those which have been widened in the Detroit area—and this includes over 150 miles of this sort or even wider ones—will have added to them 20 feet or more within the next few years.

Plans for Superhighways.

The superhighway, of which nineteen are laid out as radials from the business center of Detroit, he thinks, may answer the purpose of the future. These radials are or are to be 204 feet in width, with two 40 foot one way pavements, between which 64 feet of parkway is provided. In this parkway may be built subways of the future without the problem of disturbing abutting buildings, or they may be used for surface line rights of way. In case subways and surface lines give way to aerial transport, in future, the parkways may have a value as landing and launching fields.

"We are trying to provide for the future," he says, "but whatever the future may bring forth we will not slight in the interests of present day traffic."

"If our superhighway plans are delayed by lack of right of way here and there, we proceed just the same to build forty feet of pavement required for the convenience of traffic today. For, after all, the public of today pays the bill and its convenience should be the first consideration."

"Our plans may seem bold, but after twenty-two years as a member of the Wayne county road commission I am convinced that we have never overplanned in the past and have yet to find that we are overplanning for the future."

"The Grand Rapids extension of Grand River avenue is now in process of widening the entire 150 miles to that city. This is only one of the radials to reach out into the state. The 204 foot superhighway through Pontiac is being continued in adjoining counties, and it is safe to say this artery will be continued past Flint."

U. S. Finds $1 a Day Cost of Average Automobile

One dollar a day—$365 a year—is what the average automobile cost the average American motorist in 1927. At least that is what the figures compiled by the American Motorists' association reveal.

The operation and maintenance of his car cost each motorist $227 while the depreciation was figured at $134. The depreciation was based on the average motorist in 1927 based on the cost of operation five per cent above the figures of 1926.

automobile as figured by the federal government and the average retail price of 1926 for the year.

Fuel and lubricants was the largest item on the motorist's operation and maintenance bill, being 44 per cent of the total of $101. The mechanics charged him $47 for their time while his replacement parts totaled $41 and his tire bill was $16.

The greater mileage made by the average motorist in 1927 boosted the cost of operation five per cent above the figures of 1926.

WHEAT ADVANCED IN WINNIPEG BY SHIPPING DEMAND

Winnipeg, Man., July 4.—[Special.]—Wheat prices in Winnipeg opened lower today due to easier feeling in Liverpool but speedily reacted. July closed at $1.38 1/2, a gain of 1 1/2¢; October, $1.39 1/2, up 1/4¢ and December, $1.37 1/2, 1/4¢ higher. Cash wheat closed at $1.41 1/2, a gain of 1 1/2¢.

Liverpool market closed as follows: July, 1/4d higher; October, unchanged; and December, 1/4d lower.

Worked out in bushels and Canadian currency Liverpool close was:

Shippers Buy Freely.

All offerings on the Winnipeg market were readily absorbed by shipping houses and the market easily regained its early loss and held firm to the close. With Chicago on a holiday, spreading operations were confined to purchases of July against sales of October by shipping concerns. Local trade bought on a forecast of rains in the United States southwest, and there was also buying on the strength of private messages from Liverpool stating that Russia was making further purchases of foreign wheat.

Tone of the market was firm, despite an absence of export interest during the morning and the meager export sales overnight. Further unsettled weather is predicted for the winter wheat belt of the United States. Conditions in Canada remain generally favorable to growing crops. Light showers over three prairie provinces were shown.

Low Grade in Demand.

There was a fairly good demand for low grade wheat and No. 3 northern from shippers, and spreads on these grades were firm. Lack of offerings held trade volume within small limits. This low grade stuff has been in excellent demand all through the season, the foreigner preferring it to No. 3 northern, and the result is that supplies are nearly exhausted.

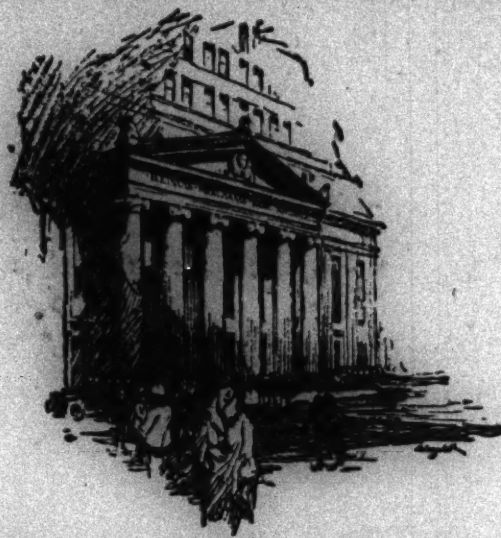

Canadian visible wheat is 78,807,000 bushels, a week ago 79,222,000 bushels, and a year ago 36,409,000 bushels.

THIRD LIBERTY BOND EXCHANGE OFFERED BY U. S.

Another step toward retiring the Third Liberty 4 1/2 per cent bonds was announced last night by Secretary Mellon of the United States treasury. These bonds mature Sept. 15 and there are now outstanding less than one billion dollars of the original issue of $4,175,450,000. The treasury is offering $250,000,000 of new 3 1/2 per cent bonds, dated July 15 and maturing June 15, 1949, although callable on four months notice after June 15, 1940. Third Liberty bonds will be accepted in exchange for the new securities, at par, although interest on the Third Liberties will be paid to Sept. 15.

If the exchange provision does not absorb the total amount offered, cash subscriptions will be received as of August 1 with an adjustment of interest. If the amount of exchange subscriptions is such that the allotted subscriptions to the combined offering aggregate $250,000,000 or thereabouts there will be no further offering of long term bonds in connection with the maturity of the Third Liberties.

Should he take HIS PROFITS or leave them alone?

"I've been buying a lot of speculative issues lately," said a business man. "I wonder if I hadn't better take my profits while I am sure I have them."

Our Investment Service Department took his list in hand—total $350,000. When this man began investing he had confined himself to sound, conservative securities, well diversified.

As his business income increased he bought larger and larger amounts of highly speculative issues. By the time we analyzed his list, 80% of his holdings were in such issues. They had gone up until they had a current market value 50% above his original investment. The remaining 20% comprised his original, sound holdings. They, too, had appreciated in principal in most instances, and they had brought him a higher yield than some of his stock holdings.

We submitted a program that involved some changes over several months. First he was to eliminate those stocks and bonds which were insecure. He was to retain, and in some instances add to, the stocks which were soundest. He was to build up a greater proportion of sound investment securities, adequately diversified as to type and maturity.

The result would be an increase of nearly 10% in annual income—reflecting the fact that the yield of good stocks is currently lower than that of representative bonds.

You may wish to consider your list in the same light. If so, the Compton Personal Investment Guide can help you group your holdings under the proper headings so that you can analyze them properly. This Guide is valuable to most investors. May we mail a copy to you?

TRADE OUTLOOK FAVORABLE FOR NEXT 6 MONTHS

BY O. A. MATHER.

What will be the trend of trade and industry in the next six months? Government officials are almost as keenly interested in this question as are leaders in trade and finance. Generally, they feel that the last half of this year will not be markedly different from the first half. A symposium of their views is given in the current issue of the Magazine of Wall Street.

Nobody views the near future with alarm. Political bias inevitably causes some apprehension as to what may follow the presidential election, but aside from the tariff, neither the men quoted nor the general run of official Washington is fearful that disaster will follow a political overturn. The electoral campaign is expected to cause some hesitancy, and perhaps irregularity, in business, but not enough to amount to retardation or serious derangement.

Export Trade Is Held Up.
"In so far as it can be foreseen, the volume of business during the last half of 1928 should be almost as large as that during the last half of 1927," Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the senate finance committee, says. "It may be a little, but not materially less. I doubt, however, if profits will be nearly as large. This is because of forced sales brought about by mass production, common to so many industries."

"Politics may have a slight retarding effect on trade during the next several months, but this should not be consequential. Taking 1928 as a whole, I see no reason why the year should not be generally satisfactory, and I believe that tendencies in general are towards sound and assuring bases."

Copper Is Optimistic.
"During the last six months the imminence of the great American presidential derby has caused not a single business ripple," Senator Arthur Capen says. "Nor is there anything new apparent, either in politics or among the factors that largely determine the course of business, to suggest other than a sanely optimistic view for the next six months."

"This year, thus far, has not been a boom year—with the exception of a few stock market episodes. There are no boom symptoms in the immediate offing. But while there is evidence of sharpening competition and more serious thought as to the balance between industrial production and consumption, general business moves, and should continue to move, in impressive though not record breaking volume throughout the year."

Little Change in Sight.
"I see nothing that portends any material change in business conditions during the remainder of the year," Representative James S. Parker, chairman of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce, says. "Conditions during the last half should be, I think, about the same as during the first half. I see nothing indicating either a boom or a depression. There is nothing in the domestic political situation that makes for economic uneasiness."

"The only important situation that is bodeful of evil is the continuance of excessive speculative activity in Wall Street. This must end at some time and when it ends the reaction may be rather startling. The effect will be confined, I believe, to speculative circles and should not materially retard general trade. In fact, the effect on conditions in general might be good."

Conditions Are Good.
"Aside from the uncertainties which may be produced by the presidential campaign and their possibly retarding effect, I see no reason why business conditions during the remainder of the year should not be good," Representative Willis C. Hawley, chairman of the ways and means committee, predicts. "There may be some slowing up during the campaign. Conditions are on the whole good and basic factors are sound. Only the decided unexpected would bring about any radical change in the trend of general business."

"It is the consensus among economists and business men I have met that, barring unforeseen political upheavals, conditions will show some improvement after the fall election; that there will be some falling off again in the spring of 1929, and that, in the fall of 1929, business will regain its stride and we will again enjoy the satisfactory conditions that have obtained during the last five years," Abram F. Myers, member of the federal trade commission, says. "Business should watch its step but there is no call for pessimism."

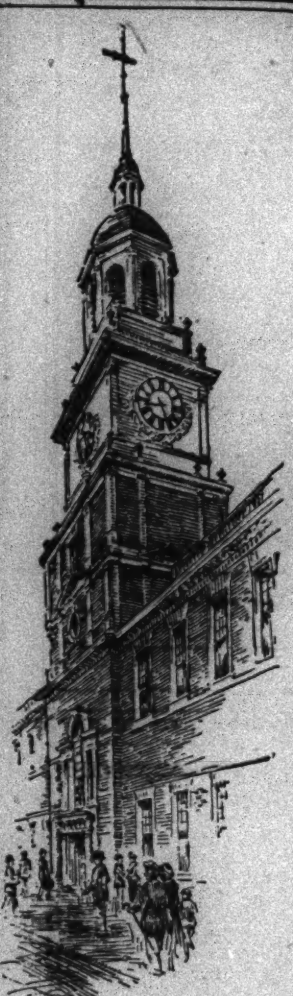

"When the situation is viewed as a whole, it is evident that the volume of current business is good and on a sound basis," Frank M. Surface, assistant director in charge of domestic commerce, bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, says. "Barring unforeseen calamities there is every prospect that business should continue on a good level for the remainder of the year."

BONDS TO FIT THE INVESTOR

Distribute maturities according to your needs
—to fortify your investment fund

LONG term securities do away with the necessity of frequent reinvestment. Short term securities assure satisfactory liquidation even under difficult market conditions. Both kinds should be included in the holdings of the average investor. With maturities well distributed, no large part of the total fund will come up for reinvestment at any one time—when conditions might not be favorable.

The correct arrangement of maturities depends upon the particular needs of each investor—his age, obligations, ambitions, sources of income and character of other assets. Suggestive of Halsey, Stuart & Co.'s ability to fit the bond to the investor are the following groups of short, medium, and long term bonds made up of representative issues maturing in from one to thirty-three years. They provide for diversification—not only as to maturity, but as to type of bond, kind of industry, and geographic location.

Quarterly Investment Guide Now Ready—This booklet presents a broad list of our current offerings, classified as to type—Government, Municipal, Farm Loan, Public Utility, Real Estate, and Industrial—with descriptions. Covers the investor up-to-date information on the bond market. Subjects of general interest to bond investors are briefly treated. Write for booklet UT-1

International Match.

G. A. H. Arlington, Wis.—International Match corporation in its consolidated income account reported net income of $16,618,888 for 1927, as compared with $14,686,272 for 1926.

This is equal to $1.07 a share earned on the combined participating preference and common stocks in 1927, against $1.20 a share earned in 1926.

Surplus for the year after paying preference and common dividends in 1927 was $9,896,512, compared with $11,346,272 after preference dividends only in 1926.

Profit and loss surplus stood at $45,548,431 at the end of 1927, against $35,651,899 at the close of 1926.

Current assets were $15,259,035 and current liabilities $11,209,023 at the end of 1927.

This left net working capital of $4,050,000, which compares with $11,945,004 at the end of 1926, when current assets were $20,170,306 and current liabilities $8,227,702.

Co-operation with the French match monopoly should add to income and negotiations under way are expected to result this year in concessions for manufacturing and selling matches in new fields.

The corporation is paying dividends of 80 cents quarterly (annual rate of $3.20) on its participating preference (par $35) and on its no par common stock.

The participating preference stock is rather high grade.

A majority of the common is owned by Swedish Match company.

Children, Like
Adults, Are the Victims of Fear

By The Chicago Tribune

If we could only free ourselves of our fears, how free we would be! If we could only realize how much we are the victims of fears, we might do something about it. We all have fears—some of us more than others. And they have a way, too, of lurking under the cover of darkness, of sickness, fear of poverty, fear of losing your job, fear of death, fear of old age, fear of your children marrying, fear of their not turning out well. And how hampering all these fears are!

A nationally known writer said not long ago that fears were infinitely more of a curse to childhood than any one seemed to realize. There is no doubt that they are more dangerous than we can imagine—also more varied. Some children fear one thing, some another.

My own boy, when he was smaller, was terrified by clowns, no matter what I did to try to reassure him about them. He was the only one of all his little friends who seemed to have that fear. Consequently I was interested in a letter which came to me a few days ago.

"My little girl had been several times to the circus and seemed to be enjoying everything but the clowns. I couldn't quite figure it out, as she wasn't a timid child, until something she said one day showed me she had met a really accepted clown as a species of animal distinct in themselves—there were monkeys, lions, ponies, elephants—and clowns. That there were men inside the grotesqueries never occurred to her.

"My sister once asked a relation when passing a cemetery what it was. 'Oh, that's just where they bury the bodies of people who die, dear.' Many months later the child screwed up courage to ask my mother, 'But mother, what do they do with their heads?' [Imagine a child living for months with this gruesome thought!]

Let us prevent fears forming in our children by causing them, ourselves, if we can. Let us remove them, if possible, when they have already gotten a hold. But above all, let us be patient and understanding about those that manifest themselves and not treat them as if they were just nonsense.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

The Green Fig.

The green or fresh fig is increasingly with us, and rather too expensive to use in cooking and preserving. It is not generally sweet enough to eat, as those who can pick it from the tree, so my own idea about its use is to slice it, turn the thin slices over in sugar, and use them to garnish fruit combinations and even fruited beverages.

In my readings I have found that figs are eaten not only fresh but half dried, as well as dried, in which latter shape they are consumed by the thousands of pounds and also much used in cookery. There are many varieties, and undoubtedly some are much more likely to be "lusciously juicy" than others. It seems the ordinary fig in many a country is the purple, and that seems to be the one we get. As to how to use them, a recent writer says:

"All ripe figs, fresh or dry, are a joy to eat, just as all unripe ones are good for nothing but making bad brandy. To enjoy a fig properly it must be picked straight from the tree and cut into four quarters, holding it by the nipple, without quite severing the segments. The four quarters will fall outwards naturally, allowing you to cream off the pulp effortlessly with your teeth, very much as you have seen dogs pull ripe blackberries from the hedge rows."

Of course, this writer was English, for we do not have hedge rows, and our dogs, as far as I know, never eat blackberries, but then one can never say what an animal will eat, for I know an adored cat that seems to go into raptures over cantaloupe.

E. V. Lucas, another Englishman, in his book, "Latter's Harvest," while describing an old gardener, tells how he picks a basket of "honey drops" or "little yellow figs," and then he divides the lot into four with great dexterity and neatness with his knife, one after the other, until we had learned to do it ourselves."

An old English book quotes quite a little fascinating story about the fig, telling how it is a receptacle which holds the flowers of the plant—and the seeds, if they mature—and then says: "The ancient history of the fig is almost inexhaustible, and full of thrilling interest."

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $5 for each child's saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unsolicited contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Amy Lee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Kenneth, aged 5, wondered whether or not his new neighbor had a little boy with whom he might play. Seeing his first opportunity, he inquired regarding the matter.

The answer was: "No, I have no little boy."

Several days later, upon seeing a little boy [a visitor] playing in his neighbor's yard, Kenneth exclaimed: "Now, that man has a little boy, and he thinks he hasn't." Mrs. T. C. S.

A new baby brother had come to little Mary's house and because she had been promised a sister, Mary was quite disappointed. She suggested that they leave him at the hospital for another family, but mother explained that this just wouldn't do and, besides, having a little brother should be quite nice. Mary thought the matter over and after much deliberation decided to make the best of things.

"I suppose," she said, hitting on a bright idea, "we could dress him up like a girl and no one will know the difference." M. W.

LITHUANIA? IT'S FUTURE OFFERS BALTIC PUZZLE

Poland, Chief Foe, Gains Strength Daily.

BY JOHN STEELE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
KAUNAS, Lithuania, July 4.—What will be the future of Lithuania? Unlike her Baltic neighbors Latvia and Estonia, it is still in much doubt. Time is on its side, but it is doubtful if it is on the side of Lithuania.

The reason for this is the different history of the countries and the different character of the nations and conditions which threaten them. The enemy of Latvia and Estonia is Russia. If Russia could have come back within a year or two after the revolution she probably could have reabsorbed these countries which depended on her economically, and whose ports she depended for her foreign trade. Russia, however, has not come back and shows no signs of doing so and so the two little states have had time to consolidate themselves, find new trade outlets and make alliances which render them safe. They are even protected by the difference of religion, most of their people being Lithuanian, while those of the other countries are solidly Roman Catholic.

Poland gains strength daily. Lithuania's enemy is Poland, which is growing stronger daily. Poland has already robbed Lithuania of Vilna and about a third of her original territory and has secured the independence of the great powers for this act of spoliation. I am not discussing here the right or wrong of it. Both sides present strong arguments, but the fact is that the Polish frontier by force has been held for eight years. Poland's frank aim is to gobble all of Lithuania. She bases her claim on history and religion. Once Lithuania was a Polish duchy and the countries are solidly Roman Catholic.

"The Lithuanians go a step farther back and claim Lithuania once ruled Poland."

Needs Ports on Lithuania. From both the economic and military points of view Poland needs Lithuania. Her frontiers would be much more secure if they included Lithuania and the Lithuanian ports would be an asset to Polish trade.

At present there is an official state of war between the two countries. What the Poles call the Vilna frontier and the Lithuanians the line of demarcation is bristling with soldiers, who glare at each other but don't fight. The railway from Kovno to Vilna, one of the most important of Lithuania's lines of communication with the outside world, is torn up at the frontier.

Rebels Polish Goods. Lithuania buys large quantities of Polish cotton goods from Lodz because she has always used them and they are cheap and good. But she buys them from a German middleman in Koenigsberg, who laboriously relabels them as German goods for the Lithuanian market. Similarly she buys Polish coal and oil through middlemen, although she could buy them much more cheaply direct.

This state of affairs, it is admitted, cannot last, but no Lithuanian politician can see a way out. All they can say is that time is on their side. While time is passing, however, the people are beginning to grumble at high prices and inconvenient travel, and even the army officers are beginning to wonder if a union with Poland would not mean a better career for them in the common army.

What Poles Offer. Polish politicians have told me that they are quite willing to make Lithuania half way. They would even give her back Vilna in return for a federal union in which Lithuania might preserve a large measure of autonomy.

Common frontiers, a common army, and common foreign policy, though, are regarded as essential and without these there is little hope of real settlement.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Setting the Trap

Wherein Elmer Is Annoyed by an Announcer

Interruption During Songs Is Criticized.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

An incident of the Al Smith meeting broadcast through W-G-N, 7 to 8, was sufficiently unusual to merit comment. During the musical numbers by Miss Erna Korn, excellent soprano and Miss Irene Korn, excellent soprano, the announcer broke in with the statement that the singer was not occupying the proper position before the microphone and that she could not be heard, for which he expressed regrets. The tones were sufficiently strong so that we would not have suspected anything was wrong had the announcer kept quiet. The announcer cannot be blamed for his well intended action; only it emphasizes the fact that the voice of any announcer is unwelcome if there is anything important on the air that we are all able to hear.

Two things out of the ordinary at WEBR. The first, a delightful performance of Mendelssohn's lovely violin concerto in E minor by Robert Quick, soloist, to studio ensemble accompaniment, 9 to 9:30. Digging this performance I indulged in the luxury of watching the score, an advisable practice in a familiar work only. The second occurred during the succeeding program by the station's string quartet. For at 9:40, while a section of one of Beethoven's quartets was being played, the station's dance orchestra of a sudden flowed in and completely drowned the string quartet, then the dance orchestra, and I believe from then on the dance orchestra had complete possession.

I had been wondering during the evening if I could find any station trying to explode fire crackers in a studio. Sure enough, I found this.

W-G-N RADIO PROGRAM The Chicago Tribune Station On the Drake Hotel

Thursday, July 5
The Merry-Mad Musical Gang!

THURSDAY may be the maid's day out, and you may have had a hard day over the Fourth, but you can always be sure of W-G-N's program of the ragtime arrangements of the better jazz tunes by the Merry-Mad Musical Gang. It's a special show with special pieces, and Al Kvale's special radio twist to the baton. Take your speaker out on the porch and let Al pep you up at 8:30.

"Miss Nobody from Starland"

Tonight at nine you will hear another of the old time musical comedy revivals. It's a restoration of "Miss Nobody from Starland" under the direction of Harry W. Springfield. This object of the spotlights of twenty years ago is also a creation of the successful team of Will Hough, Frank Adams and Joe Howard... yes, nine o'clock.
